JUDGE GRESHAM

Will Cast His Vote for Grover Cleveland.

Such Is the Announcement of the Jurist.

He Wants a Man With Back Bone in the Chair.

To Repel the Corruptionists Who Attack the Treasury.

Consternation in the Hearts of Republicans and Democrats Exuberent With Joy Over the Situation.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 3.—Judge Walter Q. Gresham will vote for Grover Cleveland. The announcement was made this morning upon authority of Judge Allen, of the federal court, and confirmed by democrats of high standing who had been in some way acquainted with the fact.

It is the general subject of conversation among politicians of both parties. Judge Allen, of the United States district court at Springfield first made the announcement. Judge Gresham has been in the state capital several days sitting with Judge Allen.

Judge Gresham told Judge Allen he should vote for Cleveland, and told him he was at liberty to repeat the statement.

Judge Allen did repeat it, and that is how the news reached Chicago.

The great jurist who loomed up as such a formidable candidate for the presidency in 1888, who has long stood dangerously near to the president's ambition, and who would to-day be upon the bench of the supreme court of the United States but for Harrison's vindictiveness, returned to Chicago. His position as judge of the federal court would not permit him to discuss politics or to pose in an interview for publication.

The accession of a man of such national prominence as Judge Gresham to Mr. Cleveland gave the democrats around western headquarters joy enough to last through October.

Judge Gresham's action would, it was considered, draw a large number of voters to the democratic party in Illinois and be of inestimable service to the party in Indiana, where he is unusually strong and where Harrison's strength is waning.

Great interest has followed Judge Gresham during this campaign and he has been made the subject of many sensational stories by political writers.

When a correspondent called on Judge Gresham he refused to talk politics. "I shall vote for Mr. Cleveland, and that is all there is about it," said he.

To the friends of Judge Gresham his course is no surprise. He has the interests of the people at heart.

He is against monopoly and class legislation, and he believes that the republican party is conducted in the interests of both. Talking of the political situation recently, Judge Gresham said: "We need men to resist the aggressions of those who seek to make our politics both an art and a mystery, intelligible only to the adept and initiated, who assume the management of it by virtue of their capacity for the defeat and artful manipulation of their fellows.

"Their influence upon the country is corrupt and debasing, and the area of political venality constantly enlarges under it.

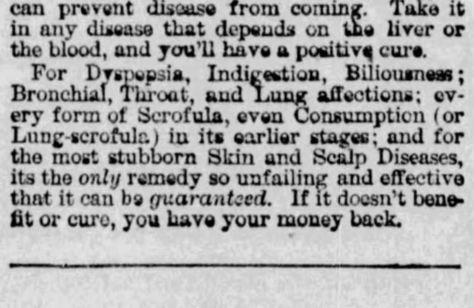
"According to their views the whole interest that any citizen has in municipal, state or national government is measured by what he can make out of it.

"It is worse than idle to shut our eyes to the existence of corrupt methods and practices in our politics, which threaten to subvert our free institutions.

"The people are often cheated at the polls and in legislation, and prizes which should be the reward of honest merit are too frequently bestowed upon the cunning and unscrupulous rich. Real freedom is not enjoyed by the people unless the laws are enacted by their honestly chosen representatives, and their freedom of action is as much impaired when it is corrupted, influenced, as if controlled by force.

"The man who accepts a bribe of any sort places his conscience and judgment in the vilest bondage. He is no longer free. Argument is wasted on him. Consideration of the public weal or woe, greed and love of power are greater than love of country. They impair popular respect for law, which is the only safeguard for life and property; and it will be an evil day for the nation when its preservation depends upon their patriotism and courage.

"They may masquerade in the guards of righteousness and address the people in the language of patriotism, but their virtues are assumed; they are hypocrites, and assassins of liberty, and would welcome a dynasty rather than shed their blood in a defense of popular government."



All the organs of the body are roused to healthy, vigorous action by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. More than all, the liver—and that's the key to the whole system. You have pure blood or poisonous blood, just as your liver chooses. The blood controls the health, the liver controls the blood, the "Discovery" controls the liver.

FIGHTING THE FLAMES

A Thousand Head of Cattle Burned.

Cowboys Have a Narrow Escape From Death.

They Were Hemmed in by a Raging Conflagration for Ten Hours.

Boise City, Idaho, Oct. 3.—In the great prairie fire that raged last week in the Bear river valley, more than 1,000 head of fat cattle were burned to death, nine houses and four cabins burned and three herdsmen fatally injured.

The cattle were feeding in a small valley on Tuesday last. A strong wind suddenly blew a sea of fire down upon them. Before the cowboys could turn the maddened animals the herd was surrounded by flames.

The cattle, huddled in the middle of a clearing about a mile square in extent, despite the efforts of the cowboys, again stampeded. Many of them dashed into the midst of the flames where they perished in horrible agony.

To save their lives the four cowboys who were within the fiery circle attempted to force their horses through a narrow belt of blazing timber. Before they had gone ten feet the animals had inhaled flames and dropped to the earth, their riders being compelled to run back to their starting place. After raging with great fury for nine hours the wind drove the flames onward and friends from neighboring ranges came to the rescue of the four cowboys. Three of them are so badly burned that they will die.

FARIBAULT PLAN.

It Was Defeated at a Recent Election.

New York, Oct. 3.—A special to the Tribune from Faribault, Minn., says an exciting school election has just occurred there. The Faribault plan was, of course, the leading issue. The old board, which favored the scheme, was defeated by 200 majority in 1,000 votes.

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.

Columbus, O., Oct. 3.—John T. West, of the West house, Minneapolis, and Wm. L. O'Brien, sr., have sold the stock which they held in the Ohio State Journal with J. D. Ellison, of Cincinnati. H. C. Ellison, of Cleveland, a brother of J. D., has been elected a director under the new deal. H. C. Ellison is a bank cashier and J. D. Ellison, an ex-railroad superintendent and president of the State Journal company.

FAST HORSES AND WOMEN.

New York, Oct. 3.—A shortage in the accounts of A. S. Letts, assistant cashier in the office of the Pennsylvania railroad in Jersey City, was discovered last Thursday by accident. As far as examination of the books has gone it appears that $2,200 in cash and $30,000 in checks are missing. The checks have been stopped.

Lett's downfall is accredited to fast horses and women. He is married and has two children.

WERE GETTING RICH.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—Yesterday afternoon Nathan Cohen, Charles Fink and Julius Weinsburg, Russian Jews, were arrested for stealing silver bullion from railroad cars in the yards on the East St. Louis. Over $2,000 worth of silver was recovered, but as the stealing has been carried on for some time it is believed the amount stolen is in the neighborhood of $10,000.

COST OF BRITISH SPORT.

About four millions and a half sterling are spent on hunting in Great Britain and Ireland, independent of the expenses of carriage horses, covered hacks and traveling expenses. There are 330 packs of hounds, and about 100,000 horses are required to follow them.—Dublin Independent.

DEATH TO PRISON

Treasurer Dann Tries to End His Days.

Sensational Turn in the Buffalo Bank Affair.

All of the Cases Have Been Postponed.

The Convicted Official Attempts Suicide.

Believed That He Is Now at Death's Door From the Effects of a Dose of Poison.

Buffalo, Oct. 3.—Edward S. Dann, the bank wrecker, is lying at death's door at his home on Delaware avenue as the result of an attempt at suicide Saturday evening.

Dr. Hopkins and Dr. Harrington, who are attending him, have grave doubts as to his recovery. He is unconscious, and has been so for over 24 hours now. What method he chose for his attempt is not known. The greatest mystery surrounds the case and Dann's relatives and attendants combat every effort to secure any information whatever.

It is said that Dann took a large quantity of morphine, and that all efforts to resuscitate him have so far proven unavailing.

This is Dann's second attempt at suicide. It will be remembered that the night of his arrest he took 20 morphine pills, but the dose was so large it made him sick and he recovered in a few hours. The trial of Dann, ex-secretary and treasurer of the National Savings bank, on 16 indictments for felony, was to have begun this morning, or to have been avoided by a plea of guilty.

At 10:15 District Attorney Quinby said: "I desire to move the case of the people against Mr. Dann, which is set down for this morning."

"If the court please," said Mr. Hoyt, Dann's counsel. "I shall be obliged to ask that the case go over for a week. I have here the certificate of two reputable physicians to the effect that Mr. Dann is ill and unable to leave his bed."

He then submitted the certificate of Drs. Harrington and Hopkins to the effect that his client is in a critical condition.

No objection was made by the district attorney and Judge Titus postponed the case for one week. The cases of Dann's accomplices, Armstrong and McCreedie, were then called.

"I next desire to move the case of the people against Armstrong," said Mr. Quinby.

Attorney Keisselberg for Armstrong, objected to this on the ground that the presence of a witness of Mr. Dann might be an imperative necessity for his client's defense and he desired the case similarly put over until Mr. Dann's recovery. The requeest was granted.

The case of McCredie was next moved and his attorney, Tracy C. Becker, also made application for adjournment, presenting certificates from physicians that McCredie is suffering from chronic alcoholism which has so impaired his mental faculties as to prevent his being able to make defense in a legal proceeding.

Counsel desired a postponement for an indefinite period until McCredie could improve and asked that the case be put over the term.

The district attorney and Judge Titus postponed the case for one week.

Dann's attempt at suicide has created a great sensation. His physicians are reticent and non-committal with regard to the cause of his illness and his counsel hints at apoplexy, but from all that can be learned there appears to be no doubt that Dann attempted to take his life in preference to an almost certain imprisonment for what would be to a man of his age a lifetime.

REFUSED TO QUASH.

Br'er Peck's Case Must Be Tried.

Judge Clute Wastes No Time in Court.

It Is the Duty of the Grand Jury to Investigate All Cases of Alleged Crookedness.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—In the court of quarter sessions at 1 o'clock to-day there was a great gathering of state politicians, counsel and criminals. The Peck case was up for a decision as to the quashing of the criminal indictment against Chas. F. Peck and Elbert E. Rogers.

Judge Clute presided, with Justices Hempstead and Stewart, while Edward J. Meegan appeared for Peck and District Attorney Eaton for the indictment.

Mr. Eaton called the case and Judge Clute said: "The motion to quash the indictment is denied. It is the duty of the grand jury to investigate any alleged offense."

Mr. Meegan then presented a demurrer sworn to by Mr. Peck, in which he said that the indictment was illegally found, and that there were two counts. In presenting the demurrer Mr. Meegan said: "This is presented in entire good faith, and I believe it is perfectly legal. Upon that question I desire to look up some points of law and ask a postponement."

The Court—How much time do you want?

Mr. Meegan—I can be ready by Wednesday.

The district attorney was unable to be there on Wednesday morning and the case was postponed until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

PARALYSIS.

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 3.—Ex-Chancellor Benj. Williamson, a son of Isaac H. Williamson, federalist governor of New Jersey from 1817 to 1829, was stricken with paralysis yesterday. He was unconscious during the night and his recovery is not looked for on account of his advanced age. He has long been recognized as the leading constitutional lawyer in the state.

THE CEPHALONIA.

Are They Carrying Steerage Passengers in the Cabin?

Boston, Oct. 3.—At daylight yesterday morning the Cephalonia was discovered at quarantine, where she had arrived during the night. She was boarded by the port physician, who found that she brought a clean bill of health and had no sickness aboard.

She brought 156 saloon and 193 second cabin passengers and none in the steerage.

The saloon passengers were at once released and most of them were taken off the ship and conveyed to the city. The second cabin passengers, however, comprised some that may be considered immigrants and consequently they, with the ship were detained at quarantine last night. The Cunard people are confident that the Cephalonia will be at her dock early to-day.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

A Young Woman Found Dead in Her Mother's Kitchen.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 3.—Miss Olive Odell, a well known young Winnipeg lady, prominent in the Episcopal church, and daughter of a Canadian Pacific official here, was found dead in the kitchen of her parent's residence yesterday morning.

The body lay in a pool of blood with a bullet hole through the breast and her brother's gun laying near by.

The circumstances are so sensational and so mysterious as to completely baffle the police. The statements of a neighbor is that at 3 o'clock she heard a man hurriedly leave Odell's residence and run down the street, leading to the supposition of murder.

Miss Odell had no troubles so far as is known and retired at the usual hour, apparently in good health and spirits. She was partially dressed when the body was found.

CHASED WEST BY DEBT

Ex-Mayor Smith at the End of His Financial String.

Protested Papers Mark the Close of His Career.

His Record in the National Guard and Much Interesting Gossip.

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—Overwhelmed with debts and threatened with criminal prosecution, ex-Mayor William B. Smith suddenly shook the dust of Philadelphia from his feet and started west, leaving behind a legacy of bogus checks, protested notes and broken contracts. This time the gallant Colonel left for good.

It was Wednesday that his ill-omened star westward took its way. On that morning he announced to some of his intimate friends that he would go to Chicago, where he would remain several days and then move on Denver. There he expected to establish himself in business, but if he failed to find his expected opportunity he would continue his journey westward, settling probably in Tacoma. He seemed to be well provided with money. He took his family with him, and was in his usual irrepressible good spirits.

It was as manager of Luke Neild's saloon, at 1412 South Penn Square, that Col. Smith succumbed to this final financial avalanche, and his sudden departure has left that famous hostelry in a state of extraordinary confusion. Since a license was granted last spring to Luke Neild it has been Col. Smith's custom to borrow money and secure supplies under his own name as "Manager." He had no difficulty in doing this, for his actual position in the premises was pretty well understood, Neild being the proprietor de jure, but Smith the boss re facto. Col. Smith himself secured the license and paid the license fee.

Under remarkable financial complications the saloon continued to do a rushing business yesterday and last night. Nobody seemed to be exercising any authority in the premises except the two bartenders, and curious callers finally reached the conclusion that the destinies of the ex-mayor's stock of beer and whisky were in the hands of those two officials alone.

The saloon trouble was but an incident of Col. Smith's financial complications. Protested checks and notes and magistrates' summons poured in upon him from all quarters. Magistrate Devlin last week issued a summons for him in behalf of a Chestnut street liquor dealer. Magistrate Clement some time ago levied upon him for arrears of rent, but that case was adjusted.

What time there was between imperative demands of this nature was filled in by personal applications and importuning letters from a host of creditors. Perhaps those who had the most trouble with the colonel were the officials of the Third Street National bank, who became wearied with protesting checks. One of the protested checks was for $1,000, which Col. Smith presented to Chief Clerk Smith at the city treasurer's office in payment of his license fee.

While mayor in 1886 it was discovered that Smith had converted to his own use several thousand dollars paid to him as fees for pawnbrokers' licenses. He was impeached by common council, but as his term had nearly expired he was never brought to trial before the select council. His administration was notoriously corrupt and the corruption permeated every branch of the city government under Smith's control. Gamblers, disorderly houses, opium joints and policy shops paid for police protection and got it. "Everything goes" became a by word here under Smith's administration.

Smith was at one time a rich man, but his downfall has been rapid. A few months ago he was dismissed, after trial by court martial, as colonel of the Third regiment, N. G. P., for misapplying the funds of the regiment.

MURDERED IN NEW YORK.

Denver, Col., Oct. 3.—From private advices received here from John Reese, jr., who went to New York a few days ago to ascertain the whereabouts of his father, it is learned that his father, John Reese, an old pioneer in Colorado, who was worth $600,000, has been murdered in New York city and robbed of from $3,000 to $4,000. The murdered man was 84 years old.

THE CAPITAN PRATT.

New York, Oct. 3.—A special to the cable to the Herald from Valparaiso says it is semi-officially reported that should Chile be invited to attend the New York naval demonstration next spring, the Capitan Pratt will be sent.

North Tonawanda, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Mary Harris is in the Lockport jail charged with causing the death of her 9-year old step-daughter, Margaret Winnefred, whom she literally starved to death

BURNING FOUR DAYS.

Timber Land in New Jersey Being Destroyed.

May Landing, N. J., Oct. 3.—The timber district near the line of the Tuckahoe railroad has been burning for four days. Thousands of acres of valuable timber has been destroyed. Attempts to fight the fire are useless, as the heavy wind carries the sparks several hundred yards and the timber is dry as tinder. It is not known how the fire was started. The Hebrew settlement at Montefiore, 25 miles above Cape May, started by Baron Hirsch, is in imminent danger of being wiped out by the fire.

DIED AT 70.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 3.—George A. Wells, for a long time Barnum's right hand man, with whom he brought Jenny Lind and Tom Thumb to this country, died yesterday, aged 70 years.

SULLIVAN ONCE MORE.

Says He Will Again Challenge Corbett.

Intimates He Was Drugged at New Orleans.

The Truth Probably Is That John Is Doing This to Keep Himself Before the Public.

New York, Oct. 3.—A special to the World from Boston says that John L. Sullivan has startled his friends in that city by announcing his intention to challenge Corbett to fight again. In an interview he said:

"I am saving money now with resolute determination to challenge Corbett to fight again and give me a chance to win back the money that was robbed from me in New Orleans. There was something wrong.

"I am not making any direct charges just now, but that it was not right I well know.

"After the first round I could see a dozen Corbetts, and, as good a man as Corbett is, I don't believe he nor any one else living can stand up and fight me 21 rounds without being hit. There was a scheme afoot to break what seemed to the pool room men a dead sure combination and I was selected to be thrown down."

TRADED BONDS FOR PUMPS

The Gas Trustees Succeeded in Making a Good Deal.

Secret Session of the Board This Afternoon—The Contract Completed.

The gas trustees held a special secret session this afternoon at which the contract for the lot on which the pumping station at Van Buren will be located was ratified.

The trustees have succeeded in making an excellent deal, whereby the bonds will be traded off for the pumps.

It appears that the Hall company has agreed to accept bonds in the event of the bonds not selling prior to the completion of the contract for putting in the pumps.

Of course if the bonds sell in the meantime cash will be paid.

OUR BOY SOLOMON

Issues a Proclamation to the Country at Large.

Saturday's grain circular issued by C. A. King & Co., and edited by "Our Boy Solomon," Mr. Frank I. King, has the following proclamation, and also some information relative to spring wheat:

Wanted—A fresh army of bull speculators to absorb the enormous offerings of farmers.

Must be strong, patient, and have liberal financial rations. Recent bulls are encouraged by the low prices to linger, but have found a two to five million bushels weekly increase in the visible supply piling up like a mountain, and requiring fresh recruits immediately if the spring wheat farmers sell as freely as did the winter wheat farmers.

A number of large Chicago generals with good staying qualities, and a much larger number of privates are needed to relieve the farmers and hold it until confidence and foreign demand increases. Europe is now feeding on their domestic crop. England has very large stocks, and is not now disposed to fight for their supplies for the distant future. Their dealers and speculators lost heavily last year; cholera has interfered with business in some European countries, and General Confidence must be in command on this side before the foreigners will follow. Winter wheat receipts are becoming somewhat smaller, but continue larger than a year ago.

Farmers must stop selling so freely; speculation must increase or prices may decline a little until it does attract fresh speculators. The spring wheat farmers hold the key to the situation. Watch receipts there.

Spring wheat receipts are the important factor now. During September they were a trifle smaller at Duluth and Minneapolis than a year ago, when the crop in the northwest was the largest ever raised, of excellent quality and prices high. Chicago receipts were trifle larger, but mostly of winter wheat. They always increase a little in October, when they generally reach the maximum. Will the low prices have any effect on the farmers selling, or will they continue to rush it in and further depress prices? It will soon be determined. Some St. Paul crank advised them a year ago to "Hold Your Wheat," and Pillsbury shouted amen. Those who did made a grevious mistake, and possibly have taken the other extreme, and are selling early this season.

THE MOST IMPORTANT BATTLES.

Sir Edward Creasy, M. A., gives as the fifteen decisive battles of the world the following: Marathon, 490 B. C.; defeat of the Athenians at Syracuse, 413 B. C.; Arbela, 331 B. C.; Mataurus, 207 B. C.; victory of Arminius over the Roman legions under Varus, A. D. 9; Chalons, 451; Tours, 732; Hastings, 1066; Joan of Arc's victory over the English at Orleans, 1429; the defeat of the Spanish Armada, 1588; Blenheim, 1704; Pultowa, 1709; victory of the Americans over the Burgoyne at Saratoga, 1777; Valmy, 1792; Waterloo, 1815. To this may be added: Gettysburg, 1863; Sadowa, 1866, and Sedan, 1870.

THE NEW PAVING MATERIAL.

A new material for paving is now being introduced in London. It is composed of granulated cork and bitumen pressed into blocks, which are laid like bricks or wood paving. The special advantage of the material lies in its elasticity. When used for pavement it gives a soft tread which is exceedingly pleasant, recalling the feeling of a carpet.

In United States, 1892, there are 31,062 locomotive engines and 1,090,813 cars.

TOLEDO'S BABIES

Soon to Have a Nursery of Their Own.

The Day Nursery Company Incorporated.

An Advisory Board, Officers and Board of Trustees Elected for the New Organization.

As announced in the Bee, the organization which has been known as the Toledo Day Nursery Circle has taken out incorporation papers, become independent of the order of King's Daughters, and is now the Toledo Day Nursery company, the first meeting under the new name and constitution being held Saturday at the Nursery.

In December last a number of the philanthropic women of Toledo set about to occupy a field for good, which promised a rich harvest, namely, the caring for the babies whose mothers are either compelled to subsist entirely on charity, or work out by the day, leaving their little ones, hungry and dirty, to the not overtender mercies of the street rabble and the evil influences of tenement paupers and saloon roughs.

With the members of this body of go-ahead women, to will is to do, and in a short time a society was organized and rooms for a nursery secured on Oak street, through the generosity of the Woolson Spice company, who kindly donated the rent.

The Day Nursery grew rapidly in popularity, and the forlorn little waifs coming under its care throve and grew merry and happy as children should.

And mothers, hearing of this place of refuge for neglected babies, brought their little ones until the nursery became too small, and it seemed necessary to take some decisive measures towards securing a permanent home.

An organization must be incorporated in order to own property, in Ohio, so the members of the society at once began to work to secure incorporation papers, with what result has been seen.

The company is now in position to take decisive action in regard to a building site. They have several options under consideration, and at the next meeting, which will be held Saturday afternoon, October 8, at 2:30 p. m., it is possible some definite plans will be laid.

Saturday's Election.

The meeting Saturday afternoon was held in the rooms of the nursery, Mrs. S. A. Trowbridge presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Dr. Bacon.

The election begun by selecting a board of trustees, composed of the following ladies:

Mrs. W. W. Bolles, Mrs. C. A. Brownlee, Mrs. George Boardman, Miss Olive Colton, Miss J. S. Turner, Mrs. Dr. Goodwin, Mrs. Mary P. Hubbell, Miss Sarah Hine, Miss Anna Janes, Mrs. D. R. Locke, Mrs. Dr. John Lilly, Miss Anna Mery, Mrs. Irene Parsons, Mrs. M. A. Scott, Mrs. D. C. Shaw, Mrs. Fred Schmidt, Mrs. S. A. Trowbridge, Mrs. T. A. Rooney, Mrs. H. M. Bacon, Mrs. Elsie Bowman, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. James Campbell, Mrs. James Davis, Mrs. E. F. Hamilton, Mrs. J. L. Hodge, Miss Mary Janes, Mrs. E. D. Locke, Mrs. Robinson Locke, Mrs. J. B. Marston, Mrs. S. C. Nicholas, Miss Mattie Norton, Miss Jessie Perigo, Miss Mina Pheatt, Miss Anna Shoemaker, Mrs. Ira Waldron, Mrs. A. M. Woolson, Miss C. B. Phelps.

After the trustees had duly qualified the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Dr. H. M. Bacon; first vice president, Mrs. W. W. Bolles; second vice president, Mrs. M. A. Scott; recording secretary, Mrs. Ira Waldron; financial secretary, Mrs. M. P. Hubbell.

The chairmen of the various committees are:

Chairman finance committee, Mrs. Robinson Locke; chairman house committee, Miss Olive Colton; chairman investigating committee, Mrs. E. F. Hamilton; chairman entertainment committee, Mrs. S. A. Trowbridge; chairman fresh air committee, Mrs. J. B. Marston.

The society then proceeded to elect an advisory board composed of the following gentlemen:

Dr. H. M. Bacon, W. W. Bolles, Robinson Locke, S. S. Knabenshue, Charles Pheatt, Maurice Scott, D. C. Shaw, Ira Waldron, A. M. Wollson, Ed Hubble, Ralph Holbrook, Dr. E. M. Goodwin, James Davis, Frank Cheney, A. W. Colton, C. F. Curtis, Geo. W. Davis, Harry Baker, Lawrence Newman, Barton Smith, H. Yaryan, F. A. King, James Secor.

The auditing committee is made up of the chairmen of the other committees and the president.

Reports of Officers.

Mrs. Ira Waldron reported that since the organization of the society in December last, there had been 1,382 days' care given to children brought to the nursery; 46 families have been helped and 62 children received. The amount of $506.38 has been received, and $327.20 has been expended.

Under the new constitution people of every denomination and sect can extend aid if they so desire.

It is the wish of the management to make this charity the work of the whole people, and not of any special creed.

On this broad basis the Day Nursery can be made a power for good in Toledo, and is open to the aid of all.

Charity boxes have been put in the Masonic temple, West and Reid's drug stores, Blade building, and D. B. Smith's office, Produce Exchange.

It is hoped that in these boxes will be gathered a goodly sum for the advancement of the work and the projected new nursery.

TO MEET IN NEW YORK

Gathering of National Democratic Clubs.

Much Campaign Work To Be Mapped Out.

A Grand Parade and Much Other Work of Interest to the Party-at-Large.

New York, Oct. 3.—Democats of national prominence are beginning to arrive in this city in goodly numbers. They are here to attend the great national convention of democratic clubs, which will be in session to-morrow and Thursday.

From all appearances it will be the largest gathering of the kind ever held. The number of delegates will exceed 10,000, but twice that number of non-delegates will be here out of enthusiasm for the cause.

To-day the New York State League of Democratic clubs is holding its annual convention in Chickering hall. This evening there will be a parade of local and state clubs, which will have a strong contingent of German American organizations under the auspices of the German-American Democratic union. The monster parade which has been planned for to-morrow night has been abandoned.

HE WON IT ON A FOUL

King Kelly Awarded the Michigan Fight.

A Small and Disappointed Crowd.

Corbett and Daly Fall Out—National League's Debts—General Sporting Gossip.

The great Kelly-Brown prize fight has occurred and there is now as much dissatisfaction as there was anxiety before.

Not over 150 people saw the fight and probably not half of that number paid the price, $2, so that there was very little in the pot to divide between the contestants. The fight took place in an open woods just over the Michigan line out Cherry street, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. The delay was occasioned by the number of people who were present and who refused to put up the price, and as the contest was in the open air, the managers of the fight could do no less than go on with the contest.

The men entered the ring and the fighting was commenced at once.

First round—Both men spared cautiously and sized up each other. Brown lead for Kelly's face and received a hard rib blow in return. Both men lead for the head but missed and some light blows were struck. Brown was now doing all the leading and Kelly was putting in hard body blows wenever he found an opening. The men clinched and both got away without being struck. Te call of time found both men sparring for an opening. Kelly had the best of the round and Brown went to his corner showing signs that his wind was very short.

Second round—Brown was very active on his feet and went after Kelly hard. Several of Brown's blows missed altogether and those that did land were light. A clinch followed an exchange of head and neck blows, and at the break away Kelly landed hard on Brown's short ribs. The men continued to spar for an opening and when Brown tried to work the pivot blow Kelly landed with all his force on his body and left the mark of the blow to show where it struck. The fighting was fast but it was evident that Kelly's long reach and powerful blows were telling on his antagonist. The call of time found Brown with his arms down, and a perplexed look on his face.

Third round—The fighting was more cautious on both sides. Several blows were exchanged and Kelly barely missed a terrific upper cut which would have caused consternation in the Brown camp had it landed. Brown was now playing for Kelly's wind, which seemed good, and in reaching for his stomach he landed below the belt. Kelly claimed a foul and the spectators shouted foul. The referee declared the foul and after some discussion the fight was awarded to Kelly.

Brown objected to the decision and offered to fight Kelly to a finish for the "whole of the money," whatever that meant, but Kelly only smiled and left the ground. It is probable that another contest will be arranged before many weeks, but it should never be in the open air and the management should be far different than this one if the people are expected to turn out and see it.

Kelly showed no marks of the battle, but Brown's sides and breast and muscles were reddened by their contact with Kelly's gloves.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The Corbett show at Music hall Thursday night was a success, barring a feature which has just come to the surface. After Corbett and Daly had sparred the rounds they retired to their dressing rooms, when a party of local sports crowded to the place to congratulate the champion on his success.

Corbett replied: "Thank you, gentlemen, but my exhibition would have been more pleasing to-night but for the fact that Daly, my sparring partner, is in the sulks."

Daly, who was close by, scowled and said: "Well, Jim, old boy, sulks or no sulks, we quit to-night.

Corbett made light of what he called an idle threat and the party dispersed. Daly was here last night, while Corbett was in Pittsburg. Daly said: "Corbett can whip any man in the world, but he is the most unreasonable fellow I ever did business with. When on the road with him previous to his victory over Sullivan, I was asked to meet all comers at all places, including one night stands. I filled the bill, but not until after I had broken several of my ribs and met with several other mishaps that would have stopped any ordinary individual. I had asked Corbett on several occasions to treat me with some degree of consideration while doing our turn, but he continued to punch away, and any objection offered by me was met with anything but a promise to do better."

Daly concluded by saying: "I am satisfied that Corbett can whip any man in the world, but he is a very unreasonable fellow and is forgetting his friends."

Daly will remain in Buffalo three weeks.

New York, Oct. 3.—Warren Lewis, the well-known sporting man, has decided to withdraw as a backer of Jim Hall, the middle weight pugilist, who recently defeated Ted Pritchard, of England. This rupture will create a sensation in sporting circles, as it was supposed that Lewis would back Hall against Fitzsimmons for a stake of $10,000. Hall is expected here from England next month. Lewis' action in declining to back the Australian is due to Jim's ungrateful treatment of "A'Parson" Davies, his manager, and also his poor showing in the fight with Pritchard, which Lewis says was not as brilliant as he thought it would be.

The Olympic club, of New Orleans, the California, and the Coney Island athletic clubs had bid for the fight between Hall and Fitzsimmons, and as much as $15,000 had been offered by the Olympic for the fight.

Washington, Oct. 3.—There are between $8,000 and $10,000 of notes due by the National Base Ball league which will have to be paid, and the special meeting to-day of the magnates is called to arrange for the payment. President Young is confident that there will be little difficulty in making a settlement.

"It is folly," he said, "for any one to believe that the league could go on and pay the present enormous salaries, or that outside capitalists would sink money in any opposition to the present organization. It has come down to a plain state of affairs. Either salaries must be reduced or professional base ball go to the wall. The men who have invested their money in the game have an interest in base ball being continued, and the fact that they are going down in their pockets and making up for their losses show their determination to remain in the business."

CRONIN CONVICTS.

Another Attempt to Get Them Out of Jail.

The Supreme Court of Illinois to Hear Another Petition.

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 3.—The supreme court convened for the October term this morning, and the case of the Cronin convicts will be brought up without delay.

Some time ago a writ of error was sued out on behalf of Ice-man O'Sullivan, and a bulky appeal against the conviction in that case was filed.

Since then, however, the grim reaper has intervened and O'Sullivan has passed from earth.

Once big, broad-shouldered Martin Burke, who was captured in Canada, when about to take a train to connect with the steamer which would convey him to Ireland, is dying of consumption in Joliet penitentiary.

Dan Coughlin, the detective, who hired Dinan's celebrated white horse and buggy in which the unfortunate physician was driven to his death, is, however, in the enjoyment of good health, and so a writ of error has been taken out in his behalf, and a duplicate of the appeal in O'Sullivan's case has been filed.

The appeal, which is a lengthy one, sets forth numerous errors in the trial, and incompetency of the jurors. In legal circles, however, it is not thought that a new trial will be granted.

"MUD THAT IS MORE VALUABLE THAN GOLD."

"There is no gold in the hills around our place, but there is mud that is more valuable than gold," said Mr. H. L. Kramer, who registered yesterday at the Auditorium, of Indiana Mineral Springs, Warren county, Ind. "It is a magnetic mineral mud and it is more valuable than gold, for it cures rheumatism in every form, no matter how long the victim has been a sufferer." "O, no," laughingly replied Mr. Kramer to the reporter's question, "we do not give our patients mud to eat; it is made up in poultices and placed on the joints where the pain is the most severe."

"It is only within the past few years that this wonderful Magnetic Mud deposit has been known. Large quantities of it have been carried away, and people are traveling far and near to our new hotel and bath-house costing over $150,000, which has just been completed, in order that they may drink the Magnetic Mineral water and bathe in the mud. There are upward of two hundred people there to-day, and many have recovered so rapidly as to make it a wonder to themselves and their friends. We look forward to the time when people will be journeying to the Indiana Mineral Springs from every state and territory in the union to be cured of chronic rheumatic and kidney diseases that baffled the best medical skill.

"The mud is found immediately at the base of the center of a horse-shoe shaped bluff, where the springs are also located, and it seems that the water of the springs pouring forth there for countless ages, has thoroughly impregnated this deposit with mineral properties, and magnetized it so that when a steel blade is left in it, after a few hours it becomes so thoroughly magnetized so you can take up a large darning needle."

Mr. A. L. Thomas, of the great advertising firm of Lord & Thomas, Chicago, is the president of the Indiana Springs Co., who have lately developed the wonderful spring. He has issued a beautiful little pamphlet which tells all about this resort, and gives the experience of many prominent people who have been cured there within the last year. It will be sent by mail free upon request. Address A. L. Thomas, 45 Randolph street, Chicago.—Chicago Tribune.

MACHINERY TRADES.

Delegates Are Meeting in Chicago.

A New Labor Organization Which Promises to Cut Quite a Figure.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Delegates from the various trades organizations in the country included in the "National Association of Machinery Trades," and embracing pattern makers, boiler makers, machinists, machinery molders, and machine blacksmiths, are arriving in the city to-day for the purpose of participating in the annual convention of that organization.

The federation was brought into existence about eight months ago, and is likely to become one of the most powerful labor organizations in the country.

John H. Stanton, of Detroit, is president; N. Morse, of New York, vice-president, and W. J. McFeeley, of this city, general secretary. The federation has a membership over 40,000, and one of its principal objects is the abolition of the dual organization that exists among many of the machinery trades unions, to harmonize them and bring them together.

At the convention this week specific action will be taken on the working day question with a view to the ultimate reduction of the limit to eight hours.

DEEP SEA FISHING.

Dr. Talmage's Regular Sunday Sermon.

How Christians Must Work If They Expect to Bring In Any Converts.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Since his return from Europe Dr. Talmage has faced audiences unusually large and enthusiastic, who are attracted to the tabernacle no less by the potent eloquence of the preacher than through a desire to hear from his own lips the message of thanks entrusted to him by the czar to the contributors of the Christian Herald famine cargo, which he and Mr. Klopsch conveyed to Russia in the steamer Leo.

It is understood that Dr. Talmage has in preparation a full account of the mission to Russia, as well as his own preaching tour to Germany, England, Scotland and Ireland. The text Sunday morning was taken from Luke v. 4, "Launch out into the deep."

Christ, starting out on the campaign of the world's conquest, was selecting his staff officers. There were plenty of students with high foreheads, and white hands, and intellectual faces, and fine tastes, in Rome and in Jerusalem. Christ might have called into the apostleship 12 book-worms, or 12 rhetoricians, or 12 artists. Instead, he takes a group of men who had never made a speech, never taken a lesson in belles-lettres, never been sick enough to make them look delicate—their hands broad, clumsy and hard-knuckled. He chose fishermen, among other reasons, I believe, because they were physically hardy. Rowing makes strong arms and stout chests. Much climbing of ratlines makes one's head steady. A Galilee tempest wrestled men into gymnasts. The opening work of the church was rough work. Christ did not want 12 invalids hanging about him, complaining all the time how badly they felt. He leaves the delicate students at Jerusalem and Rome for their mothers and aunts to take care of, and goes down to the seashore and out of the toughest material makes an apostleship. The ministry need more corporeal vigor than any other class. Fine minds and good intentions are important, but there must be physical force to back them. The intellectual mill-wheel may be well built and the grist good, but there must be enough blood in the millrace to turn the one and to grind the other.

He chose fishermen, also, because they were physically hardy. Rowing makes cannot stand assault is not fit for the ministry. It always has been and always will be rough work; and the man who, at every censure or caricature, sits down to cry had better be at some other work. It is no place for ecclesiastical doll babies. A man who cannot preach because he has forgotten his manuscript or lost his spectacles, ought not to preach at all. Heaven deliver the church from a ministry that preach in kid gloves, and from sermons in black morocco covers! These fishermen were rough and ready. They had been in the severest of all colleges. When they were knocked over by the main boom of the ship, they entered the "Sophomore;" when washed off by a great wave, they entered the "Junior;" when floating for two days, without food or drink, on a plank, they came to the "Senior;" and, when, at last, their ship dashed on the beach in a midnight hurricane, they graduated with the first honor.

My text finds Jesus on shipboard with one of these bronzed men—Simon by name. This fisherman had been sweeping his net in shoal water. "Push out," says Christ; "what is the use of hugging the shore in this boat? Here is a lake twelve miles long and six wide, and it is all populated—just waiting for the sweep of your net. Launch out into the deep."

The advice that my Lord gave to Simon is as appropriate for us all in a spiritual sense. The fact is that most of us are just paddling along the shore. We are afraid to venture out into the great deeps of God and Christian experience. We think that the boat will be upset, or that we cannot "clew down the mizzen topsail," and our cowardice makes us poor fishermen. I think I hear the voice of Christ commanding us, as he did Simon, on that day when bright Galilee set in among the green hills of Palestine, like water flashing in an emerald cup: "Launch out into the deep."

This divine counsel comes, first, to all those who are paddling in the margin of Bible research. My father read the Bible through three times after he was 80 years of age, and without spectacles; not for the mere purpose of saying he had been through it so often, but for his eternal profit. John Colby, the brother-in-law of Daniel Webster, learned to read after he was 84 years of age, in order that he might become acquainted with the Scriptures. There is no book in the world that demands so much of our attention as the Bible. Yet nine-tenths of Christian men get no more than ankle deep. They think it is a good sign not to venture too far. They never ask how or why; and if they see some Christian becoming inquisitive about the deep things of God, they say: "Be careful; you had better not go out so far from shore." My answer is: The farther you go from shore the better, if you have the right kind of ship. If you have mere worldly philosophy for the hulk, and pride for a sail, and self-conceit for the helm, the first squall will destroy you. But if you take the Bible for your craft, the farther you go the better; and after you have gone ten thousand furlongs, Christ will still command: "Launch out into the deep." Ask some such question as "Who is God?" and go out for ten years asking it. Ask it at the gate of every parable; amidst the excitement of every miracle; by the solitariness of every patriarchal threshing-floor; amidst the white faces of Sennacherib's slain turned up into the moonlight; amidst the flying chariots of the Golden City. Ask who Jesus is, and keep on asking it of every Bible lily, of every raven, of every star, of every crazed brain cured, of every blind man come to sunlight, of every coin in a fish's mouth, of every loaf that got to be five loaves, of every wrathful sea pacified, of every pulseless arm stretched forth in gratulation; ask it of his mother, of Augustus, of Herod, of the Syrophoenician woman, of the damsel that woke up from the death sleep; of Joseph, who had him buried; of the angel posted as sentinel at his tomb; of the dumb earth, that shook, and groaned, and thundered when he died.

A missionary in France offered a Bible in an humble dwelling. The man took it, tore out a dozen pages, and with them began to light his pipe. Some years after the missionary happened in the same house. The family had just lost their son in the Crimean war, and his Bible had been sent back home. The missionary took it up and saw that it was the very same Bible that he had left in the house, and from which the leaves had been torn. The dying soldier had written on one of the leaves of the Bible: "Rejected and scoffed at, but finally believed in and saved." The Bible may be used to light the pipe of witticism by some, but for us it is a staff in life, a pillow in death, and our joy for eternity.

Walk up and down this Bible domain. Try every path. Plunge in at the prophecies and come out at the epistles. Go with the patriarchs until you meet the evangelists. Rummage and ransack, as children who are not satisfied when they come to a new house, until they know what is in every room, and into what every door opens. Open every jewel casket. Examine the skylights. Forever be asking questions. Put to a higher use than was intended the Oriental proverb: "Hold all the skirts of thy mantle extended when Heaven is raining gold."

Passing from Bom to Coblentz on the Rhine, the scenery is comparatively tame. But from Coblentz to Mayence it is enchanting. You sit on the deck, and feel as if this last flash of beauty must exhaust the scene; but in a moment there is a turn of the river, which covers up the former view with more luxuriant vineyards, and more defiant castles, and bolder bluffs, vine-wreather, and grapes so ripe that if the hills be touched, they would bleed their rich life away into the bowels of Bingen an Hockheimer. Here and there, there are streams of water melting into the river, like smaller joys swallowed in the bosom of a great gladness. And when night begins to throw its black mantle over the shoulder of the hills, and you are approaching disembarkation at Mayence, the lights along the shore fairly bewitch the scene with their beauty, giving one a thrill that he feels but once, yet that lasts him forever. So this river of God's word is not a straight stream, but a winding splendor—at every turn new wonders to attract, still riper vintage pressing to the brink, and crowded with castles of strength (Stolzenfels and Johannisberger as nothing compared with the strong tower into which the righteous run and are saved), and our disembarkation at last, in the evening, amidst the lights that gleam from the shore of heaven. The trouble is that the vast majority of Bible voyagers stop at Coblentz, where the chief glories begin.

The sea of God's word is not like Gennesaret, twelve miles by six, but boundless; and in any one direction you can sail on forever. Why, then, confine yourself to a short psalm, or to a few verses of an epistle? The largest fish are not near the shore. Hoist all sail to the winds of heaven. Take hold of both oars, and pull away. Not like some of the whalers that went out from New Bedford or Portsmouth, to be gone two or three years. Yea, calculate on a lifetime voyage. You do not want to land until you land in heaven. Sail away, oh ye mariners, for eternity! Launch out into the deep.

The text is appropriate to all Christians of shallow experience. Doubts and fears have in our day been almost elected to the parliament of Christian graces. Some consider it a bad sign not to have any doubts. Doubts and fears are not signs of health, but fosters and carbuncles. You have a valuable house or farm. It is suggested that the title is not good. You employ counsel. You have the deeds examined. You search the record for mortgages, judgments and liens. You are not satisfied until you have a certificate, signed by the great seal of the state, assuring you that your title is good. Yet how many leave their title to heaven an undecided matter! Why do you not go to the records and find out? Give yourself no rest, day or night, until you can read your title clear to mansions in the skies.

Christian character is to come up to higher standards. We have now to hunt through our library to find one Robert McCheyne, or one Edward Payson, or one Harlan Page. The time will come when we will find half a dozen of them sitting in the same seat with us. The grace of God can make a great deal better men than those I have mentioned. Christians seem afraid they will get heterodox by going too far. They do not believe in Christian perfection. There is no danger of your being perfect for some time yet. I will keep watch and give you notice in time, if you get too near perfection for the safety of your theology. One-half of you Christians are simply stuck in the mud. Why not cut loose from everything but God? Give not to him that formal petition made up of "O's"—"O Lord!" this and "O Lord!" that. When people are cold, and have nothing to say to God they strew their prayers with "O's" and "Forever and ever, Amen," and things to fill up. Tell God what you want, with the feeling that he is ready to give it, and believe that you will receive, and you shall have it. Shed that old prayer you have been making these ten years. It is high time that you outgrew it. Throw it aside with your old ledgers, and your old hats, and your old shoes. Take a review of your present wants, of your present sins, and of your present blessings. With a sharp blade cut away your past half-and-half Christian life, and with new determination, and new plans, and new expectations, launch out into the deep.

COOLEY KILLED.

The Country Rid of a Desperado and there Is Much Rejoicing.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 3.—A Uniontown special says: Frank Cooley, the leader of the famous Cooley outlaw band, was hot and killed to-day at his father's home by a posse under Sheriff McCormick, of Fayette county. Cooley has been in the habit of spending his Sundays at the old homestead and Sheriff McCormick learing of this, quietly had the place surrounded last night. Frank Cooley and his pal Ramsey arrived during the night and Sunday the attempt was made to capture them. The outlaws tried to escape and Frank Cooley was killed in the attempt. There is great rejoicing over Cooley's death, and it is believed that the band will now be broken up.

RIOTING FOR BREAD.

Terrible State of Affairs in Mexico.

Starving Men Are Driven to Madness.

Speculators Corner the Grain and Put It Beyond the Reach of the Poor.

New Orleans, Oct. 3.—The Times-Democrat San Antonio special says: Homer Finlay, formerly a well-known citizen of San Antonio, but who for the past six years has been engaged in the mercantile business in the city of Morlia, Mexico, has arrived here and gives a vivid account of the famine riot which occurred in that city last Sunday, and of which but very brief mention was made in the City of Mexico dispatch.

He stated that it was one of the most exciting and pitiable scenes ever witnessed in that part of the republic, and that another serious outbreak of the kind may be expected.

Morlia is the capital state of Michoaca and the residence of the archbishop of the diocese. It is one of the most beautiful cities in southern Mexico, but notwithstanding all of its attractions its people are on the verge of starvation, the crops for the four seasons being a total loss and there is a scarcity of all other food supplies.

"When the famine was threatened several months ago," said Mr. Finlay, "several of the wealthy merchants of Morlia contracted for large quantities of corn in the surrounding towns, the total shipments amounting to 75,000 bushels, which is enough to have supplied the suffering people. These speculators, however, put up the prices and extorted what little money the poor people had in a short time.

"For the past two months the suffering among the poor has been intense, and many deaths from starvation have occurred. The streets became thronged with beggars and hungry men, women and children made heartrending appeals for help.

"This was kept up until Sunday night, when the starving horde organized themselves into a mob, and, driven by desperation, began a concerted attack upon the food stores of the city. There were fully 6,000 people in the mob, and the police were utterly powerless to stop its progress.

"One after another was entered, and as but little corn was found the frenzy of the mob increased. The two regiments of federal cavalry and one of infantry stationed at Morlia was called out to quell the riot, but their appearance only added to the desperation of the starving people. The commander planted the soldiers in front of the mob, but they fought their way through. Several persons were injured.

"Gen. Mercade, the governor of the state, by this time had made his appearance, and came near falling a victim to the vengeance of the mob, who claimed that he should have taken steps to relieve their suffering. The soldiers opened fire upon the people, and one man was killed and several wounded. Acting on command of their leader, the mob started for the granaries of John Matrinez, in which 3,000 bushels of corn were stored. They broke down the doors and supplied themselves with all each could carry away. As their temporary wants had been supplied the mob quietly dispersed. I left Morlia on the following day, and will remain away until the excitement quiets down."

"SICK" PEARLS UNDER TREATMENT.

At the foot of a cliff under the windows of the Castle of Miramar, formerly the residence of the Mexican Emperor Maximillian, at a depth of 80 feet below the surface of the clear waters of the Adriatic, is a kind of cage fashioned by divers in the face of the rock. In that cage are some of the most magnificent pearls in existence. They belong to the Archduchess Rainer. Having been left unworn for a long time the gems lost their color and became "sick," and the experts were unanimous in declaring that the only means by which they could be restored to their original brilliancy was by submitting them to a prolonged immersion in the depths of the sea. They have been lying there for a number of years and are gradually but very slowly regaining their former unrivaled orient.—Public Opinion.

MURDER FOR THE FUN OF IT

A Shoemaker Stabbed by a Woman in New York.

Margaret Geoghegan Runs a Knife Into Fred Levy to See If It Hurts—She Gloats Over Her Work.

New York, Oct. 3.—In the cellar of the tenement house at 334 First avenue Frederick Levy has a second-hand shoe store. Patrick Geoghegan walked in with a woman known as Margaret Geoghegan, who says she lives at Second avenue and Twenty-fifth street. Geoghegan picked up some shoes on the counter and tried one on, and then asked Levy how much he wanted for them. "Fifty cents," said Levy.

"To hades with you," said Geoghegan. "I'll take them all, and won't pay you a cent," and he grabbed the shoes and started out of the store. Levy ran to the door and tried to lock it. Geoghegan dropped the shoes and grappled with Levy. The two men fell to the floor and rolled over, kicking and fighting.

Geoghegan finally pinned Levy down beside the lounge and held him. The woman had grabbed the shoeknife from the work bench and followed the two men about the shop, watching for an opportunity to stab Levy. Just as Geoghegan pinned Levy down the woman struck at him with the knife. "Don't kill me!" yelled Levy.

"Won't I," jeered the woman, leaning over him, grinning and waving the knife slowly to and fro in front of the cobbler's face. "Won't I? Just watch and see."

The woman bent over Levy until their faces almost met. Slowly she raised the knife above his breast. Levy struggled, but Geoghegan held him fast. The woman pressed the point of the knife against Levy's left breast. "Does it hurt?" she jeered, and as Levy writhed in pain she sneered: "Then it hurts to be killed, does it?"

Little by little she pressed the knife against his breast. Then deeper and deeper she drove it in, pausing now and then to watch the cobbler writhe. Suddenly she drew the knife from the wound and with both hands drove it again into his breast. The blade penetrated the left lung.

"Let him go, Paddy," said the woman to Geoghegan, as she flung the knife in Levy's face. "He's dead, sure, or if he ain't he soon will be." Then the pair fled and were captured an hour after. Levy will die.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Parliament Was Unexpectedly Dissolved.

Much Speculation as to Why the Present Action Was Taken.

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 3.—Lieut.-Gov. Tilley, acting on the advice of the government, has dissolved the New Brunswick legislature a year before the close of its term of four years. There are various rumors assigned for the course of the Hon. A. G. Blair, the premier.

It is said that an alliance has been made with Judge Landey, formerly a provincial secretary in the previous government, to leave the bench and re-enter political life.

Should this be the case it would win French support in the northern counties, something that is much needed.

Two members of the government, Commissioner of Works Ryan and Solicitor General Pugsley, have tendered their resignations, which may weaken the premier.

The reason for the government's step is not known. At the last session of the legislature the opposition support had materially dwindled, and such a case as a legislature not living out its natural term here has not been known in the past except in the case of a vote of want of confidence.

The upper chamber will cease to exist at the dissolution, and as several of its members were opposed to being legislated out of existence the government will find many opponents in this quarter, as many of them will contest in different counties.

It is said that a mermaid once asked a Scotchman who was reading the Bible if there was any comfort in the book for her. He replied that there was mercy for the sons and daughters of Adam, whereupon she screamed and disappeared.

Beauregard paid the costs for driving too fast in the city limits. The case against Patrick Sullivan, charged with assault and battery and with carrying concealed weapons, was continued until to-morrow, as was the case of C. Antener, arrested for assault and battery. Rudolph paid a fine and the costs—$35.20 in all—for receiving stolen goods.

A Flurry in Official Circles.

The article in yesterday's Bee to the effect that a republican member of the police board knew more about treachery on the force that he would like to have known has created quite a flury in official circles. One member of the board has already taken it upon himself to deny that he is the one referred to. Inasmuch as this name was not mentioned it is strange that he should feel called upon to make a denial.

Don't Care to Vote.

The Toledo Y. W. C. T. has come to the conclusion that the dues paid by them into the district is not yielding large enough returns and have decided to decline to pay any more.

This, of course, deprives them of representation at the Piqua convention.

The Ys are rather a conservative body, however, with no new-fangled notions about the rights of their sex, and it is said they don't care to vote, even in convention.

The Bartlett Street church was packed last evening to hear the preaching and singing of Rev. B. C. Black and Miss Jennie Harris, and a large number were turned from the door, unable to get standing room.

John Lego, who served in the Forty-fifth Pennsylvania infantry and also in the Thirteenth Pennsylvania cavalry during the late war, died at the residence of his son, Wm. T. Lego, of this city, Sunday morning, of diseases contracted in the army. Comrade Lego served nearly four years in the ninth army corps of the Potomac, participating in the campaigns under McClellan, Burnside, Hooker, Sheridan and Grant, and leaves an honorable record as a soldier as well as an unblemished reputation as a citizen. The funeral will be under the auspices of Ford post, G. A. R., of which he was a member until transferred to post No. 468.

Spore Wants an Investigation.

Chief of Detectives Spore has asked the board of police commissioners to investigate the charges of treachery that have been preferred against him in a roundabout way. He does not like the idea of having a cloud of suspicion hanging over him, and will insist upon a thorough investigation from beginning to end.

If Spore remains on the force until Wednesday he will have been connected with the department for eleven consecutive years. During that period he has not been called before the board to explain or answer charges of improper conduct. Interesting developments may be looked for if Spore has a hearing on this charge.

The Broer Examination.

The Broer examination in probate court was continued last Friday indefinitely, to give Mr. Read an opportunity to subpoena a number of witnesses.

Mr. Read appeared in court this morning, stating that he was ready to continue the examination, and that the testimony of William Nichols would be taken.

Mr. Bassett, the official stenographer, was engaged in circuit court and would be unable to attend. Nichols was sworn and the hearing continued until next Friday at 9 a. m.

Nichols is the party who negotiated the deals for Broer by which he obtained cash for stock. He also owns an interest in one or two of the patents.

The claim amounts to $795.83, for wheels and spokes sold and delivered after August, 1892. The petition sets up that the credit was extended on the representation of Cray & Rood, through a commercial collecting agency.

From Detroit the committee will go direct to New York City, where a similar inspection will be made.

The trip is given through Mr. Frank J. Hoag, by the Warren-Scharf Asphalt company in order that the public may judge for itself of the difference between what is known as laud asphalt and Trinidad Lake asphalt.

The councilmen's cases have been again continued until next Saturday.

As was stated in the Bee, John Daly applied for a struck jury, which requires four days' notice. The court this morning fixed the date of trial for Saturday.

Judgments For Creditors.

Judgements in default were taken against Fred Eversman in common pleas court this morning in favor of claimants as follows: Abraham Lesser, $890.88; Samuel W. Lippman et al., $313.75; Geo. A. Minon, no amount entered. In each case the garnishee was ordered to pay money.

The Tennis Winners.

Mr. Herbert Whitney won the championship cup in the Anourndale Y. M. C. A. tennis tournament which was kindly donated by Jeweler W. E. Cawood, beating Mr. Geo. Quire by a score of 97 5-9 and 6—3.

The final in ladies' singles was between Miss Ray Morse and Miss Lura Whitney, Miss Whitney winning by a score of 6—2 7—5. Prize for ladies' singles was a handsome medal, presented by Roulet & Armstrong.

Mysteriously Stabbed.

About 9 o'clock last night, while a West Toledo man, named McGoldrich, was passing along Lagrange street, between Bronson street and Central avenue, in company with W. D. Burch, also of West Toledo, a stranger ran up behind them and stabbed McGoldrich in the face and head and then disappeared in the darkness almost as mysteriously as he had come upon them.

The wounded man was taken to the office of a near-by physician, where a cut two inches long over the left eye and a four-inch cut on the head were discovered and sewed up.

The details of the affair were telephoned in to police headquarters and the patrol wagon with several officers immediately started for the scene. In about two hours, however, it returned without any prisoner.

While the officers were investigating the matter a young Pole named Piniaskirewzz, alias Jos. Bruiss, put in an appearance at headquarters. He was accompanied by two companions, and they said they understood that the authorities were looking for Piniaskirewzz. The latter said he had a schrap in a Lagrange street saloon Saturday night with a Pennsylvania railroad engineer named S. D. Kina, who lives at 1408 Moore street. He said he knocked Kina down, and then some one else took a hand in the row and when Kina got up from the floor his head was cut from the right eye back to his ear. He said he not only did not do the cutting, but didn't know wh odid.

While Piniaskerewzz was telling his story Detective Heinig returned from the scene of the affair. He said the Pole corresponded with the description of the assailant that had been given him, and he was there fore placed under arrest and locked up. Th ePole said he knew nothing about the cuting, whaever, but that he went to police headquarters because he though he was wanted for the row with Kina.

This morning the party who was with McGoldrich went to the police station, and after looking the Pole over said that he was not the man who cut McGoldrich, and he was therefore released.

Two men named Atep. Olson and John Sherwood have been arrested and locked up on suspicion, but the chief says they are not held for being implicated in the row.

The two men who were cut are not seriously injured. There is considerable mystery surrounding the affair and further details are expected to develop to-day.

REAL ESTATE PURCHASES.

Messrs. Waldind and Marvin Will Erect Homes on Collingwood.

To-day Messrs. W. J. Walding and H. E. Marvin bought of Irving B. Hiett & Co. 180 feet in Collingwood avenue, between Bancroft and Virginia street, for $19,000. Mr. Walding has the plans prepared for an elegant home on one section of the lot. It will be of the colonial style, with four large pillars in front. Mr. Marvin will not build until next year.

WHO OWNS THE WHEAT?

An Interesting Suit Filed in Common Pleas Court.

C. A. King & Co. filed a suit in common pleas court to-day against John B. Stuart and the Union Elevator and Transportation company to gain possession of 1,498 bushels of wheat, stored in the warehouse of the Union Elevator and Transportation company.

The plaintiffs claim that the wheat was shipped to Toledo by D. & W. Potts from St. Francisville, Ill., and that before its arrival they advanced $1,070 on the bills of lading. They allege that the defendant, John B. Stuart, as sheriff, took possession of the grain and has deprived them of its use since August 22. The plaintiffs claim $500 damages.

THE PREACHERS UNION.

Temperance Discussion Sunday at the World's Fair.

The Preachers' union met this morning at the First Congregational church. Rev. W. C. Hopkins read a paper on moral issues from a T. W. T. A. standpoint, which contained many excellent points. A general discussion then ensued, participated in by Revs. Bacon, Buckingham, McGaw, Anderson, Candee, Hopkins, Hunt, Hiller, Fisher, and others. The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That we indorse the Toledo Temperance association, and heartily recommend all ministers of the city to attend the next meeting at the Davis Business college, October 12, at 7:30 o'clock, bringing a full representation with them.

Mr. Charles W. Whitaker was present and asked for the co-operation of the ministers in the presentation of the following petition in regard to the opening of the world's fair on Sunday:

Hon. Harvey P. Platt, Commissioner World's Fair Commission, Toledo, O.

We, residents of Ohio, rejoice in the recent action of congress directing that the world's fair to be held in Chicago, shall be closed on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, and most earnestly urge your honorable body not to sanction any attempt that may be made to repeal such action.

We also urge the Columbian commissioners to veto any proposition for the sale of intoxicants which would in any sense be a violation of the statutes of the state of Illinois.

A like petition will be sent to Hon. Wm. Richie, of Hamilton, O. On motion the ministers decided to co-operate with the Y. P. S. C. E. and to help sustain the petition.

Dr. Bacon will read a paper on "Literature in the Life of the Pastor" at the next meeting.

The regular train on the T., C. & C. will convey the Toledoans and all others who desire to attend.

DEMOCRATIC
Congressional Convention

The Democrats of the Ninth Congressional District of Ohio, comprising the counties of Fulton, Lucas, Ottawa and Wood, are hereby notified to meet in convention in Bowling Green, Wood County, at 10 o'clock a. m.,

ON TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1892,

for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for congress to be supported at the November election.

The basis of representation in this convention will be one vote for every one hundred votes, and one for every fraction of 50 and over, cast for James E. Campbell for Governor in 1891. Upon this basis the several counties are entitled to the following vote in convention:

Fulton	17
Lucas	85
Ottawa	29
Wood	46

L. C. COLE, Secretary. W. J. COLBURN, Chairman.

Three record breakers, Hanks, 2:04, Mascot, 2:04, Johnson, 1:56 1-2, two horses and a man, and the speediest is the man, on a wheel.

Comparisons are odious. During the years 1886, '87 and '88, Commissioner John C. Black, under Cleveland's administration rejected 185,046 claims for pensions. Commissioner Raum, under Harrison's administration, rejected, during the years 1889, '90 and '91, 407,273 claims, or 222,166 more than Black rejected. Black was a democrat and Raum is a republican.

Ingalls, of Kansas, hates democrats worse than the Devil does holy water, and like his Satanic majesty, the Kansan makes many blunders. A public remark, a few days since, that "hammer and tongs and not rosewater would be used on the Kansas democrats" made the democrats mad and fusion talk is stronger than ever. The populists and democrats have a clear majority in Kansas, and if wise counsels prevail they will take the electoral vote away from Harrison.

Trial by newspaper continues in the east, and Lizzie Borden is dragged near the scaffold. It is seldom such a case of persecuting prosecution is recorded. The attacks are vicious, with only circumstantial evidence to warrant the same. Gail Hamilton comes to Miss Borden's rescue in a characteristic letter of expressive English. She demands fair trial and decent treatment. Gail's trenchant pen is a power at times and may serve a good purpose now.

The difference in valuation, between the skilled workmen in the Homestead mills and lordly Manager Frick is plainly demonstrated. Hundreds of men could take the place at Mr. Frick's desk. The company has scoured the country for men to do the work of the locked-out skilled workmen, and now close their chief mill because of machinery ruined by inexperienced hands. And yet, Mr. Frick considered himself so grandly the superior of these laborers he refused to arbitrate with or listen to them.

So straight and strong are the blows struck by Col. McClure in his answer to McKinley's tariff speech, a business men's republican club of Philadelphia has been organized to "discuss the situation" and try and counteract the positive influence of Mr. McClure's convincing argument. The address which has been productive of such activity is now ready for distribution in pamphlet form. Its logic and conclusions are unanswerable, and every student who desires to be well posted on both sides of the tariff question should have it.

The announcement is made that during the year 1891 one third of all the western grain delivered in New York was shipped via the Erie canal. This statement is an argument strongly used in urging the improvement of that canal. It would hardly seem possible that the old canal did such wonderful service, when we think of the thousands of miles of railroads and the countless sails on the lakes all pointing eastward. There are great trunk lines leading to New York, yet the old veteran with its slow mule power and primitive methods managed to control one third of the business—and more. During the open season low canal freights kept railroad rates down, adding thousands of dollars to western prices for grain. The projected improvement is opposed by the railroads, and no wonder, but the people of New York should take up the matter in real earnest and increase the capacity of the old pioneer.

MR. READ WAS NOT ELIGIBLE.

Candidate Reid managed to get his adverse record on dealing with labor organizations sort of patched up, by yielding for the sake of votes, what he doggedly refused to yield for the sake of his workingmen, when votes were not considered. Now he has a harder task that this to accomplish. A proposition to elect him honorary member of the Grand Army, brought forth vehement opposition, on the grounds that he had no record to entitle him to such membership. So heated became the contest in Washington, Mr. Reid's record was overhauled with the result of publication, in Washington newspapers, of several communications from those who opposed the granting of such honor to the vice presidential candidate. One of these reads as follows:

Editor Post: I know nothing about the military record of Whitelaw Reid, but I remember some scraps of history which shew that he was anything but the soldier's friend, judging from the spiteful spirit in which he spoke of Grant, Garfield, Sheridan and other deservedly distinguished generals. On the 9th of January, 1875, Mr. Reid's paper practically supported a proposition to assassinate Gen. Grant, then president of the United States, by publishing the following infamous communication:

BAYONETS AND LEGISLATION.

To the Editor of the Tribune:

Sir: Now that Kellogg proposes to decide who shall belong to the Louisiana legislature, and is backed by the United States army, might not President Grant better decide who shall belong to the next congress, and enforce his decisions by five or six regiments of United States troops, commanded by that truthful and just (italicised ironically) man, Gen. Sheridan, and remove all regularly elected members, to make room for the Caseys and Dents? If he insists on fighting it out on this line, some one will play Brutus to his Caesar, without fail, which, by the way, would be a great blessing to the country.

Another item in Mr. Reid's record was his accusation of James A. Garfield, through the columns of his paper, the New York Tribune:

James A. Garfield, of Ohio, had ten shares; he never paid a dollar; received $329, which, after the investigation began, he was anxious to have considered as a loan from Oakes Ames to himself. These men betrayed the trust of the people, deceived their constituents, and by their evasions and falsehoods confessed the transactions to be disgraceful.

Whether Editor Reid was more honest and had more the courage of his convictions then, than Candidate Reid has now, is not in question. His record from the G. A. R. standpoint was not sufficient and his name was not presented for honorable membership. Now, perhaps, the organs will cease the silly gabble about Stevenson and his war record and turn their attention to the defense of their own man. The whole matter is senseless in the extreme and such "arguments" are exploited only to prejudice weak and uninformed minds. Mr. Reid did himself honor in opposing the Louisiana bargain, but showed unwonted brutality in saying that the assassination of President Grant "would be a blessing to the country." Every man who was connected with the Oakes Ames deal was disgraced, and Mr. Reed need never be ashamed of having said it.

That these utterances against their idolized leaders should stir the Grand Army men, is easily understood; that they have any bearing on the political questions at issue in the present campaign any more than Gen. Stevenson's suspected opinions of the conduct of affairs at that time, is absurd. And it is unfortunate for their own man that such is the republican method of campaigning.

POWDERLY'S PRONUNCIAMENTO.

The newspapers which, in great haste, announced that Mr. Powderly had declared for Harrison are cited to his words in the Knights of Labor Journal, over his own signature. He says:

We are told that wages have advanced, but for the life of me I cannot find a man whose wages have been increased by the tariff. It has had nothing to do with the increase in wages, for in no case can the proofs be produced to show that wages have increased except where the labor organization had a strong footing and enforced a demand for an increase of pay.

Mr. Powderly simlpy says that where the tariff robs a man of of fifty dollars, the railroad and stock gamblers take twice that sum out of him. He hits off the "average wage" business very neatly when he says:

Chauncey M. Depew gets $50,000 a year for playing king's jester to the Vanderbilts and incidentally acting as president of the New York Central railroad. Another employe of the New York Central is Jimmy Duff, a man just about as tall and as heavy as Depew, but a great deal more honest and moral than Chauncey. Duff gets one dollar a day, for he is only a trackman, and that is a more serious business than revamping second-hand jokes. Duff gets one dollar a day, which, with 300 working days in the year, brings in $300. Averaging the wages of Depew and Duff gives Chauncey $25,150 and Jimmy $25,150. That reads nice in a report, but, when Duff reads the report and feels his ribs, he don't find such a nice warm covering of fat over them as Depew stows away under his robe when he retires for the night.

Of the report of Labor Commissioner Peck, he says: "I do not believe he made a thorough and honest report and I do not believe he ever did make one; the Knights of Labor knew the man and protested against his appointment." Speaking of the Labor bureau generally:

It is some two years ago that I warned our members and organized labor generally that an effort was being made to turn the department of labor at Washington, D. C., into a partisan machine to grind out campaign thunder for politicians, and, if labor does not open its eyes to see, its ears to hear and its lips to speak out loud against the system now in vogue, we will have political machines doing the work of shrewd wire-pulling demagogues instead of honest institutions doing the duty for which they were created.

Of his voting intention, Mr. Powderly assures those who are interested that he "shall give his vote to Gen. James B. Weaver," who stands on the political platform himself assisted to construct.

This is all very plain talk and one wonders where the organs of the Harrison party found their testimony that "Mr. Powderly had avowed himself a protectionist and would vote the republican ticket and thereby influence a large number of uncertain ballots."

THE QUESTION OF WAGE.

The rate of wages in England is adduced by protectionists, in support of their views. Could anything be more ill-founded? England has 27,000,000 population; its territory is about five times less than that of one of our states. The land is almost entirely monopolized, and has been for centuries, by about 7,000 of its inhabitants. What else could we expect under such circumstances than that millions should be down-trodden and oppressed?

For many years after the conquest, and the division of the lands of England among the leaders of the followers of the conqueror, the latter were obliged, in time of war to equip and support an allotted number of soldiers. There was then no public debt. But in an evil hour this was changed, and the burden of the government and its wars was placed upon the whole people. And matters were so cunningly and fraudulently arranged that but little of this burden was shared by those who had usurped almost all the land. In the apportionment of lands mentioned there left many tracts, some of them of considerable extent, not named in these apportionments. These were known as "Commons," and they afforded much sustenance to those who occupied them, and were, consequently, a great alleviation to their condition—bad enough at best. But there have been, during the last three or four hundred years, acts of parliament giving these commons to the adjoining land owners. The effect of these unjust measures was to drive vast number of people from their old homes, and force them into towns and cities, and hundreds of thousands of them into involuntary pauperism. And there are partisan fools enough and corrupt politicians enough to attribute all the evils resulting from these iniquities and oppression to the existence of Free Trade!! Was ever greater political knavery, or blindness, or idiocy? Call it what you may. CHAS. CRAVENS.

A REPORTER SUICIDES.

New York, Oct. 3.—A. H. Conn, a reporter, was found dead from asphyxiation in his room at Smith & McNeill's hotel [illegible] the World most of the time. Recently he has been out of employment, and it is believed committed suicide from despondency. Every crevice in the room where he was found dead had been carefully stopped up. He was undressed. In his pockets were found letters of recommendation from newspapers in St. Louis and Nashville. His hotel bill was due to-day.

DEMOCRATIC DESSERT.

John's Little Law.

If the Sherman law had been intended for anything but a blind for ignorant republicans it would be appealed to for the protection of the people from the coal combine.—Chicago Times.

Needs a Map.

Blaine may sulk, ignore Harrison and stay away from the polls, but that noblest old Roman of them all, Judge Allen G. Thurman, not only manifests the keenest interest in the political contest, but will register and vote as becomes a true and loyal citizen.—Detroit Free Press.

An "Infant" with the Colic.

The pearl button infant has not succeeded in knocking out its Austrian rival. Many Bohemian workmen who were persuaded to come to America to help nurse the McKinley foster child have gone back home in disgust and have secured their old jobs.—Kansas City Star (Ind.)

Bird's-Eye View of the Situation.

The success of the democrats in New York state, with the addition of two or three of the doubtful states, combined with their ability to hold their own in states that have been steadily democratic in the past, will be all that is needed to assure the election of Mr. Cleveland.—Boston Herald.

Prefer Not to Discuss.

The democratic candidate for governor in Massachusetts has challenged the republican candidate for the same office to one or a series of joint debates, Gov. Russell doesn't care which. Democratic challenges to debate are not accepted by republican candidates this year. Past experience has taught them caution.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Calls Our Col. Bad Names.

It will be seen from our telegraphic dispatches the Associated Press monopoly is about to go to pieces. The public knew it must be in a bad way when Elliot F. Shepard, the greatest miscellaneous fool in all history, became its president. Few there will be to drop a tear over the demise of this rotten and corrupt monopoly.—Macon (Ga.) News.

He Didn't Mention It.

Major McKinley spoke in our neighboring town, Washington, yesterday. Wonder if he told why he utterly failed as a prophet? We all remember how he predicted in 1890 that if 12 cents additional tax were placed on wool the price would jump up to 40 cents a pound. His bill passed, and wool went down from three to five cents lower than before the additional tax.—Wheeling (W. Va.) Register.

The I and Deity Fellows.

There is always a good deal of this "thank God" sort of eloquence among the G. O. P. orators during a presidential campaign, when the "people's heart" has got to be "fired." Indeed, republican campaign speeches would become very tame and thin and insipid if deprived of adjuratory clauses of the "thank God" and "God forbid" variety. When an orator stands on his toes and stretches out his arms and calls God to witness to the soundness of some particular republican view of the tariff question or of the national banks, or announces the Almighty as a silent partner in that political organization, or perhaps perorates with a "God forbid," everybody says at once "mankind ought to listen to this person attentively—he seems on such easy terms with the Deity."—Minneapolis Times.

Poor Prospects for Cheap Tin.

The report of the United States geological survey on the mineral resources of the United States is benevolent but very cautious in its statements about the quantity of tin mined in the United States. The Temescal mine in California is the only one spoken of as having ever produced tin in commercial quantities, and it produced in all 60 tons of pig-iron before it ceased operations last year. No tin has been gotten out in 1892. It is uncertain when the mine will be worked again. The South Dakota mine is still unproductive, and there is no prospect of early results. The Cash mine, in Rockbridge county, Va., has produced no metallic tin yet. These are all the tin mines we are alleged to have. As we are to have under the McKinley act a duty of four cents a pound on imported tin after July next the prospect for the consumer who wants cheap tin is poor.—Baltimore Sun.

JANAUSCHEK

At the Wheeler's Opera House This Evening.

Probability That This Is Her Last Season—The Week at the People's.

Madame Janauschek will present "Macbeth" at Wheeler's this evening and the sale of seats indicate that she will be greeted with a crowded house.

Although Madame Janauschek does not announce this as her farewell season, there is a strong probability that it will prove the closing one of her career. It is said that she is playing this season only under very strong importunities and flattering inducements. A few months ago the Dramatic Mirror and some of the New York dailies advocated a grand farewell engagement in the metropolis in view of her probable retirement. This farewell has not been abandoned by Madame Janauschek's admirers, but has simply been postponed. George W. Childs, editor of the Philadelphia Ledger, has pledged himself to superintend a brilliant farewell in the Quaker city, and this dramatic event extraordinary will probably take place just before Lent of the present season.

It is therefore probable that when the present season is over one of the great geniuses who have dominated the stage during the past thirty years will yield to the temptations of retirement.

Few of the great personages of the stage have aroused so profound an admiration as many of the world's playgoers have bestowed upon Madame Janauschek, the Bohemian tragic actress. King and chief executives have laid laurels at her feet and distinction and obscurity have done her homage on two continents. For almost two decades she has stood alone as an interpreter of a line of classic drama in which she has had no visible successor. She has been the artistic feminine complement of such geniuses of the heroic classics as Edwin Forrest and Tommaso Salvini.

People's Theater.

Florence Bindley, in her realistic comedy-drama, "The Pay Train," will be at the People's all this week. Miss Bindley, in this same piece, made a big hit here last season and won for herself many friends in this city. She is surrounded by an able company and the production of the "Pay Train" requires a whole car load of special scenery and mechanical effects. The latter includes one of the most realistic railroad scenes ever staged.

WEEVIL DESTROYING WHEAT.

Cincinnati, Oct. 3.—Complaints have been coming into Cincinnati of the depredations of weevil upon wheat in the state. At first they attracted but little attention. They have been coming in so regularly and from so many quarters as to be regarded seriously. They are from many points of Kentucky, from Southeastern Indiana and from the Scota Valley in Ohio. Reports are that farmers in the last named place are rushing their wheat crop to the market. Some car loads of wheat shipped south from here heated greatly on the way.

WHEN NATURE

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

REPUBLICAN RELISHES.

Cautious Courage.

"Governor Foraker has the courage of his convictions," says an admiring exchange We notice, however, that he never speaks south of Mason and Dixon's line.—Indianapolis News.

With an Aside.

Aside from the silver question, everybody knows that the candidates presented by the republican party for the various offices to be filled this fall are entirely worthy of the trust and confidence of their fellow-republicans.—Denver Republican.

Deceiving the People.

Two years ago the democrats talked about what the McKinley bill would do, but this year they are at the disadvantage of having to talk about what it has done. It is much easier to mislead the people concerning the future than to deceive them with regard to the past and present. —Kansas City Journal.

In Harness on a "Kite" Track.

With Depew, Miller, Hiscock and Platt in harness on New York's kite-shaped track the republicans are likely to break their glorious record made in every presidential year since 1856 with three notable exceptions, when Seymour, Tilden and Cleveland carried the state.—Ohio State Journal.

Has a Grievance.

Mr. Harrison wants California's nine electoral votes, and in order to get them he prefers to trust to the railroad company rather than to the people, whose emphatically expressed wishes as to the San Francisco postoffice site he has calmly and scornfully ignored.—San Francisco Examiner.

Cleveland and His Party.

Cleveland can pose as a protectionist and the party shout lustily for free trade. The candidate is above his party—so far above that he is able to sweep aside the work of conventions, and, upon a platform of expediency, proclaim himself a new Liberty enlightening the world.—Sacramento Bee.

The Tariff Did It!

Thanks to republican tariff legislation and sunshine these Connecticut tobacco growers will be richer by $3,000,000 than in average years. The present prices are the highest they have received since the halcyon days of this crop during the war times. Their prosperity practically decides Connecticut's action in November at the polls. Cleveland's plurality in 1888 was but 336. National Committeeman Fessenden will see to it that it doesn't happen again.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Democrats Alarmed.

They are in deep water in New York because of the dissensions in the ranks of Tammany and the figures of their own man Peck. As for carrying Indiana, that is out of the question. It is President Harrison's own state, and it has a republican majority that is loyal to the president. These three states will all give a national republican majority in November, and the democrats view with great alarm the condition of affairs.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Senator Hill at Buffalo.

If Senator David B. Hill's Brooklyn effort left any doubts as to his ability to make a democratic speech founded on the platform adopted at Chicago in June, they were thoroughly dispelled by his remarks at Buffalo. Not only did he make a strong argument from the democratic standpoint, but he prefaced his remarks by the announcement that he was present for the purpose of advocating the election of Grover Cleveland and Adlai Stevenson. It is not unreasonable to conclude that Mr. Hill is very much in earnest.—Washington Post.

Cleveland's Letter Unanswerable.

Mr. Cleveland makes no argument, hence he gives no opportunity for an answer. He contents himself with a few glittering generalities, and under the circumstances no doubt is wise. He will not please those ardent democrats who are trying to make an issue of a force bill killed by a republican senate. His references are so brief as to leave no doubt that he does not consider that subject worth serious attention. It would have been more pleasing to the country had Mr. Cleveland given reasons for the statements he makes, but he has not seen fit to do so, hence his letter goes forth as a mere statement devoid of facts.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE UNION OF UNIONS

Held a Long and Interesting Special Sesson.

Delegates to the Piqua Convention Instructed as to the Wishes of the Body They Represent.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Union of Unions in the Central Congregational church Saturday afternoon, the business before it being the changes in the consitution of the Ohio W. C. T. U.

The president, Mrs. J. S. Eck, presided, and led devotional exercises, and Mrs. Southland acted as secretary.

On account of so many of the members being absent at the Piqua convention on the regular meeting day (Thursday), it was decided to transact the regular business of the union at this session and hold no other meeting this month.

Accordingly this business, which consisted of reports from various committees, was disposed of as follows: Mrs. Neil and Mrs. English reported on the lecture on temperance instruction, delivered by Rev. Fisk before the teachers' institute last month.

They were favorably impressed, but the reference to fanaticism was not approved, as these earnest temperance women do not believe it is possible to be too fanatical in the work of abolishing liquor selling and drinking.

The committee appointed to visit the police matron had not done so, and it was reappointed with instructions to make a report next month.

The committee on T. U. T. A. work had no report to make, and was reappointed.

The meeting of this society occurs on the evening of October 12 in the Toledo Business collegee.

The following beautiful tribute to the memory of Mrs. Affie A. Hitchens, was read by Mrs. Southland:

We are called upon to record the death of Mrs. Affie A. Hitchens, late secretary of the Union of Unions, who was called from her work here to a better life, September 9, 1892.

So brief was her illness, that few outside of her circle of nearest friends knew of it, and the news reached most of her white ribbon friends by the newspaper notice of the funeral.

The sad surprise that always attends the sudden taking away of one we have known, is rendered sadder when we have labored with and learned to expect help from the one who will meet with us no more.

A very efficient worker was our departed sister in the W. C. T. U. ranks. She brought into it an earnest, direct determination to accomplish something.

Friends of her younger life make mention of this same earnestness when it was directed to the bringing up of her boys, who were left so early without a father, and of her untiring devotion to their welfare.

Her number of years fell far short of the allotted time, but who may say that her life was not full to completeness.

Our days are in the hands of Him who knoweth best when to call his workers from labor to reward.

We hear of no dismay or regret in the closing hour of our sister's life. We believe, rather, that she woke with a glad surprise to find the conflict ended and to know the peace that passeth all understanding.

A friend, remarking the peaceful look that rested on her face, was reminded of the precious words, "He giveth His beloved sleep."

Dear members of the Union of Unions, let us remember that, though the workers drop one by one from the ranks, still must the work be carried on. Let us do with more diligence our work, for we may not know when our summons will come.

The memorial was ordered spread on the minutes of the union and copies sent to the city press.

The real business of the meeting, the changes in the Ohio constitution of the W. C. T. U. was next taken up, Mrs. Sumner reading the original article, where changes were made, and Mrs. Bartlett reading the clause as revised or amended. The alteration was then discussed and the union voted on the adoption or rejection of each.

Many delegates go into convention not knowing what measures are going to be acted upon, or if they do, are ignorant of the merits or demerits of the case. In the excitement attendant upon large gatherings of this kind, they cast their votes in exactly the opposite manner they would have done, had they given the matter calm deliberation, and heard it discussed.

It is proposed that the Toledo delegates to the Piqua convention shall be enlightened as to the wishes of the body they represent.

After every proposed change had been carefully considered, the president announced the course of lectures to be given under the auspices of the Political Equality club and urged the members to purchase season tickets.

The November meeting of the Union of Unions will be held with the Henrietta L. Monroe W. C. T. U.

A SEQUEL TO THE FIGHT.

Referee Roberts and Jack Mullins Have a Go,

After Which the Services of a Physician Are Required to Sew Up Roberts' Wounds.

The alleged prize fight yesterday resulted in a sequel that was more on the square if not quite so scientific as the first.

After the fight Jack Millins, one of the seconds, and Tom Roberts, the referee, had an altercation in Eckenrode's saloon on Summit street.

Millins was disposed to question the correctness of Roberts' decision, whereupon Roberts, it is alleged, struck Mullins.

The men were separated, but later Mullins went for his assailant with a beer glass. He swung the glass clear across the room, and it struck Roberts squarely in the face, inflicting a frightful wound. Roberts bled like a stuck hog, and it was necessary to call in a physician, who sewed up the wound.

The matter was kept quiet and no arrests were made.

Omitted One of the Best.

In the article in the Bee a few days ago on the city kindergartens, an omission was unintentionally made of the Ys' kindergarten at Birmingham (the malleable iron works).

This kindergarten is perhaps doing more good in this particular locality than any other Christian influence that is brought to bear on the residents.

The Y. W. C. T. U. of Toledo is composed of some of the brightest and noblest young women in the city, and this kindergarten is one of their methods of doing Christian work.

A Munificent Gift.

Prof. A. H. Steadman has presented the Toledo Boys' Home with a gift that is above money value, though its results always bring a good price in the markets—a free scholarship, which one of the more advanced boys is using to good advantage.

The management of the school is very grateful for this kindness and also for other donations from business men and others.

The interests are heartily appreciated and will be made the best possible use of.

Women's Building Association.

The first meeting of the Women's Building association since the summer vacation occurred at the Bee editorial rooms Saturday afternoon last, Miss Bouton in the chair. Ways and means were discussed generally and informally, and plans for going ahead were debated. The treasurer reported that the amount necessary for incorporation was nearly subscribed. A full attendance at the next meeting, Friday afternoon of this week (at the Bee rooms at 3:30) is desired.

A Small Fire.

A still arlam at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon called the fire department to the Wertheim block at the corner of Huron and Adams streets, where a small blaze was getting in its work. The flames were extinguished before any serious damage was sustained.

Democratic County Committee.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 p. m. the democratic county central committee will meet at Byron Ritchie's office in the Law building for the transaction of some important business. Every member of the committee is requested to be present.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The Matron's Reply.

To the Editor:—On Friday evening of last week a femal entered the parlor of the Wonderland museum, seated herself on one of the chairs, and commenced eating. The matron approached her and in a civil and lady-like mnaner told her that eating was not allowed in the parlors and this hauthy female gave her head a toss in a most defiant manner and said: "I will break the rules then." The matron told her if she broke the rules she would have to leave the muesum. It would be advisable for people of that kind to remain at home until they learn common sense and good manners, as no person will be allowed to remain in the parlors of the museum unless the yean act th epart of a lady.

THE MATRON.

A CARD.—I DESIRE TO THANK ALL those who so generously patronized me during my great reduction sale, which has now drawn to a close. We feel confident that all patrons who were fortunate enough to secure some of the great bargains during this sweeping reduction sale will have no cause to regret that they placed full confidence in what we advertised. We are now receiving new goods daily and of course it will not be reasonable for us to offer our fall designs at such ridiculously low prices as we did during our reduction sale. We will say this, however, that it will pay to patronize us, for we are going to sell watches, diamonds, silverware and jewelry at prices so low that customers can feel satisfied that they have saved at least from $2 to $5 on every purchase. We will continue as before a few leaders until further notice, such as alarm clocks, $1; silver thimbles, 35c; Rogers Bros. 1847 triple-plated knives at $2 per set; forks at $2 per set; Rogers' triple-plated tea spoons $2 per set, and dozens of other leaders which we will advertise from day to day in Cawood's advertisements. Yours respectfully, W. E. Cawood, Jeweler.

WE BUILD THE LADDER.

Heaven is not reached at a single bound,
 But we build the ladder by which we rise
 From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to the summit round by round.

I count this thing to be grandly true,
 That a noble deed is a step toward God,
 Lifting the soul from the common sod
To a purer air and a broader view.

We rise by the things that are under feet,
 By what we have mastered of greed and gain,
 By the pride deposed and the passion slain,
And the vanquished hills that we hourly meet.

We hope, we aspire, we resolve, we trust,
 When the morning calls us to life and light;
But our hearts grow weary, and ere the night
Our lives are trailing the sordid dust.

We hope, we aspire, we resolve, we pray,
 And we think that we mount the air on wings,
Beyond the recall of sensual things,
While our feet still cling to the heavy clay.

Wings for the angels, but feet for the men.
 We may borrow the wings to find the way,
 We may hope and aspire and resolve and pray,
But our feet must rise or we will fall again.

Only in dreams is the ladder thrown
 From the weary earth to the sapphire walls;
 But the dreams depart and the vision falls,
And the sleeper wakes on his pillow of stone.

Heaven is not reached at a single bound,
 But we build the ladder by which we rise
 From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount the summit round by round.
 —J. G. Holland.

MYFRIEND'S STORY.

"It's a very strange story," he said, "a very strange story—one I have dared tell to very few persons, and yet if you insist I will give it you."

I had insisted and besought by turns for half an hour and this concession of his was the outcome of a series of strategic movements on my part that would have done honor to a Parisian detective.

"Well, then," I said, "I insist. Go on with your story, and if any pledge of secrecy is in order, just say so and I'll hold up my hands."

"I don't enjoin secrecy," he answered slowly. "The story is not one you would care to repeat."

"Oh, very well, very well," I bantered, with a mighty affectation of a flippancy I did not feel. "I can close my mouth as tight as any one you know. But to the story. Your wife, you said, died a year ago?"

"I said nothing of the kind," he replied emphatically. "I told you I lost her a year ago." Then he rose and crossing the room emptied the ashes from his pipe into the fireplace and helped himself to another round of tobacco. As he stood for a moment silhouetted against the flaring coals in the grate, silent, calm, serene, it burst upon me suddenly that the silence and serenity which in him I had long regarded as most offensive and unpardonable were nothing other than the dignity of sorrow, and I felt ashamed of myself; not the first time, perhaps, that I have had the same feeling, but never mind that now. At last, having lighted the new pipeful, he turned and said simply:

"You insist?"

By this time I realized that I was in for it whatever it might be, and I answered promptly, "Yes."

And then, still leaning on the chimney-piece, he began in a hesitating way:

"As you already know, Gladys and I were married a trifle over 13 months ago. I loved her madly, and she, poor girl, was all a wife should be or could be. We were very happy together; no clouds ever darkened the clear heaven of our mutual love, nor troubles for a moment disturbed our peace and happiness. Previous to departing on our wedding trip I had leased a suite of rooms in a large uptown flat—and when we returned after a short tour those rooms became our home and our paradise. So things ran on for nearly two months, and then—then came the end—the end."

Here he paused and, turning away from me, looked into the hissing, spluttering little fire a moment. Somehow I did not feel like breaking the silence—I realized that he was not thinking of me then, and to speak would have been obtrusion if not sacrilege. At length, raising his head, he turned to me with apparent effort and as he did so I could see there were tears in his eyes.

"One evening," he went on, after I had begged him be seated and he had taken the big cushion chair by the hearth, "one evening last February my wife and I spent with her mother and returned at a late hour to our apartments. The night was a bad one, and Gladys, poor little girl, was weary and exhausted when we reached home. Her bright eyes had a dull, leaden look, she was pale, complained of a headache and said strange things as if her mind were wandering for the moment, and I recommended that she retire at once and sleep off the ill effects of her over-exertion. She was very loth to take my advice for some reason or other, and when I had lighted my pipe and drawn my armchair up to the table she came and knelt beside me and took my hand in hers.

"'John,' said she—ah, how well I remember her words, spoken in her piquant, half-reproachful way—'John, you don't mean to send me away from you, do you?'

"'Yes, my dear,' I replied, rather petulantly. 'For your own sake I do. You need sleep and rest. I am perfectly safe here with my paper.'

"She rose and turned away, but had taken only a few steps when she returned and took my hand again.

"'You want me to leave you, John?'

"'Yes, yes, my dear; go to sleep and get a night's rest; it will do you more good than anything else under the sun.' Her caresses somehow made me feel cold and nervous, and I spoke more harshly than I should have done had I stopped to think. She rose quickly and passed into our bedchamber beyond, and as the portieres closed behind her a feeling of unutterable loneliness overcame me, my heart beat hard and fast and I breathed with difficulty. It was all absurdity, of course, and when I had hesitated a bit and reasoned I quickly buried myself in my paper and tried to forget the occurrence. But every few moments the same strange unrest oppressed me, until I finally threw aside the paper, and rising paced the floor, trying to drive off the feeling before I retired for the night. Perhaps I had been pacing up and down for an hour, or it may have been but ten minutes—it don't matter how long it was—when my attention was suddenly arrested by a singular movement of the portieres at our bedroom doorway, and I stopped short, unable, afraid to move an inch. Slowly the heavy draperies moved as though someone was pushing them aside and passing through; then they closed as quickly as they had opened.

"The unaccountable thing filled me with terror, and I was about to spring forward and tear the curtain down when I was again transfixed by fear. The ponderous oaken door which led from our apartments into the public hallway swung slowly on its hinges, as if someone were going out. Then came a faint sob like a woman sighing, and the door closed and latched itself. Nothing had been visible but the moving of the curtains and the door, and yet my soul was filled with a nameless horror that I dared not dwell upon. Rousing myself I leaped forward, and tearing aside the portieres rushed to my wife's bedside. There she lay, her eyes closed and her pale face faintly illuminated by the light that followed me through the doorway. I seized her hand and stroked to awaken her, but she did not move. In an agony of terror I bent my head to listen for the beating of her heart. Then clasping the limp form in my arms I pressed it in my bosom and called aloud her name:

"'Gladys, Gladys, my Gladys!'

"But there was no answer, she was gone."—San Francisco Call.

CONQUERED WITHOUT A SHOT

Sir William Macgregor Gains the Mastery Over Rebellious Natives.

One of the best men who ever headed a colonial enterprise is Sir William Macgregor, who was appointed first administrator of British New Guinea four years ago, says the New York Sun. He is a man of great energy and enthusiasms, manages the natives with much tact, has an explorer's zest in the pursuit of geographical facts, and has done more than any other man to make the interior of southern New Guinea known to the world. Here is an incident that gives an insight into Sir William's way of dealing with savage tribes:

The people of the Sumai district had attacked their neighbors, the Demory tribe. A chief of the Demory tribe met the attacking party, and told them that his people were friendly to "government," meaning Sir William and his rule, and that Sumai had better not fight its neighbors, because the government would be sure to inflict punishment. Then the chief pointed to the shirt which he wore as being a government shirt. The Sumai men replied that they did not care a fig for the government or government shirts and one of them drew his bow and shot the unfortunate chief clean through the body, a feat which is often achieved by New Guinea bowmen.

Sir William decided that the Sumai warriors must receive a lesson in good manners. As soon as possible he landed a force in their district. He told the men that they had attacked people who were orderly and well behaved, and that they must suffer for it. He advised them to get ready to fight. They replied that they did not wish to fight. Sir William made answer that a fight was necessary, in order to ascertain who was to be master in future. They would not obey the government, and now the government intended to find out whether it could make them obey.

"My guns are loaded and ready," said Sir William; "now you get all your weapons and we will have a fight and settle the question who is master."

Sir William had brought with him quite a number of men from neighboring tribes to whom the Sumai people had boasted that if the whites came against them their heads should rot on poles in Sumai. The natives, however, had now lost their boastful vein. It was a great humiliation for them to beg for mercy in the presence of their neighbors. But they did beg most lustily. They said the government should be master from that day, and that they would always listen to its commands.

Sir William would not promise to pardon them. He told them, however, that he would not fight them, but he would return to them in three weeks to see if they had carried out the orders he was about to give them. He selected from them two men as chiefs and two men as policemen and told them they were to be his agents in seeing that the people kept at peace with their neighbors. The Sumai men had treated the teacher who had been sent among them with contempt and neglect. Sir William told them that the church and school house which the teacher had tried to build must be completed by the time he returned. Then he went away, and three weeks later, upon his return, he found the church and school house completed, the teacher carrying on his work under very pleasant conditions, and the people living in amity with all their neighbors. "I do not believe," says Sir William Macgregor, "that this tribe will again molest any of their neighbors." They had been conquered, and the white governor had not shed a drop of blood.

AMERICA'S NAMES.

In these quadro-centennial days it is worth while to recall the fact that the continent now named America has gone at one time or another by a great many names. The notion that Columbus held of finding a westward passage to India by way of the Atlantic is recorded in the names New India and India Occidental, found upon old maps as indicating the land discovered by Columbus. America Mexicana was an old name of North America, as America Peruviana was of South America. Then Brazil was for a time the name applied to the southern continent. Finally, the origin of the name America has been gravely disputed, though the weight of testimony leaves practically no doubt that it coms from the Christian name of Amerigo Vespucci. Some early authorities, however, gravely contended that the name came from the Peruvian word Amaru, meaning the sacred symbol of the cross, made of a serpent and a stick, and the suffix ca, meaning country. Thus derived, America means the land of the holy animal.

ATHLETES OF THE PRESENT DAY.

J. E. Sullivan, secretary of the Amateur Athletic union president of the Pastime Athletic club, and Athletic Editor of The Sporting Times, writes:

"For years I have been actively connected with athletic sports. I always found it to my advantage to use Allcock's Porous Plasters while in training, as they quickly remove soreness and stiffness; and when attacked with any kind of pains, the result of slight colds, I always use Allcock's with beneficial results. I have noticed that most athlets of the present day use nothing else but Allcock's Plasters."

If Barytes and other adulterants of White Lead are just as good as

why is it that all the bogus and adulterated white leads are always branded "Pure," or "Strictly Pure White Lead?"

No one ever puts a misleading brand on an article of merchandise, unless he wants to "work off" an inferior for a better.

This Barytes or Baryta, is a heavy white powder, worthless as paint; costing only about one cent per pound and is used to adulterate and cheapen the mixture. No one ever adulterates white lead with an article costing more than Lead.

If you purchase any of the following brands you are sure of having strictly pure white lead—

ANCHOR (Cincinnati)
ARMSTRONG & McKELVY (Pittsburgh)
BEYMER-BAUMAN (Pittsburgh)
COLLIER (St. Louis)
CORNELL (Buffalo)
DAVIS-CHAMBERS (Pittsburgh)
ECKSTEIN (Cincinnati)

These brands of strictly pure White Lead and the National Lead Co.'s Tinting Colors are for sale by the best dealers in paints everywhere.

MARLBORO, Ohio, April 14, 1892.

The Hand Medicine Co.

DEAR SIRS:—Having used nearly four bottles of your Colic Cure, I forward you this testimonial, hoping it may benefit many mothers with suffering babies. I am the happy mother of triplets, all girls; now 14 weeks old. When they were about 3 weeks old they were taken with a very severe attack of wind colic. There were three days and nights I had two of them in my arms nearly all the time. I tried all the remedies I had ever heard of without any relief. A sample of your Colic Cure was handed me, which I used with the very best results, and I sent for more at once and I shall recommend it to every mother. I feel there is no language strong enough to express its value. I have also used several of the other Remedies and found each to be exactly as you represented them to be. I trust the Lord will forever bless you for procuring a remedy to relieve suffering innocence.

A TREATY WITH CHILE.

Mr. Egan Has Arranged a Convention.

What the Document Contains in Full.

A Translation From a Chilean Paper for the Benefit of Readers of the Bee.

New York, Oct. 3.—Patrick Egan, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Chile is on his way to this country with the claims and treaty which he arranged with Don Isidoro Errazuriz, the Chilean minister of foreign relations.

The Chilean Times, published in Valparaiso, in its issue of August 24, gives the treaty in full, translated from the Diario Official of August 20. The treaty is as follows:

The United States of America and the republic of Chile, animated by the desire to settle and adjust amicably the claims made by the citizens of either country against the government of the other, growing out of acts committed by the civil or military authorities of either country, have agreed to make arrangements for that purpose by means of a convention, and have named as their plenipotentiaries to confer and agree thereupon as follows:

The president of the United States of American, Mr. Patrick Egan, envoy extraordinary of the United States to Santiago, and the president of the republic of Chile, Don Isidoro Errazuriz, minister of foreign relations of Chile, who, after having communicated to each other their respective full powers, found in good and true form, have agreed upon the following articles:

Article I.—All claims on the part of corporations, companies or private individual citizens of the United States upon the government of Chile, arising out of acts committed against the persons or property of citizens of the United States not in the service of the enemies of Chile or voluntarily giving aid and comfort to the same, by the civil or military authorities of Chile; and on the other hand, all claims on the part or corporations, companies or private individuals, citizens of Chile, upon the government of the United States, arising out of acts committed against the persons or property of citizens of Chile, not in the service of the enemies of the United States, voluntarily giving aid and comfort to the same, by the civil or military authorities of the government of the United States, shall be referred to three commissioners, one of whom shall be named by the president of the United States, and one by the president of the republic of Chile, and the third to be seeed by mutual accord betewen the president of the United States and the president of Chile. In case the president of Chile shall not agree within three months from the exchange of the ratification of this convention to nominate such a third commissioner, then the same nomination of said third commissioner shall be made by ta epresident of the Swiss confederation.

Article II.—The said commission, thus constituted, shall be compelled and obliged to examine and decide upon all claims of the aforesaid character presented to them by the citizens of either country.

Article III.—In case of the death, prolonged absence or incapacity to serve of one of the said commissioners, or in the event of one commissioner omitting or declining or ceasing to act as such, then the president of the United States, or the president of the republic of Chile, or the president of the Swiss confederation, as the case may be, shall forthwith proceed to fill the vacancy so occasioned by naming another commissioner within three months from the occurrence of the vacancy.

Article IV.—The commissioners named as herein before provided shall meet in the city of Washington at the earliest convenient time within six months after the exchange of ratifications of this convention, and shall as their first act on so meeting make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide, to the best of their judgment and according to public law, justice and equity, without fear, favor, or affection, all claims within the description and true meaning of articles I. and II., which shall be laid before them on the part of the government of the United States and of Chile, respectively, and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings—

Provided, however, that the concurring judgment of any two commissioners shall be adequate for every intermediate decision arising in the execution of their duty, and for every final award.

Article V.—The commissioners shall, without delay after the organization of the commission, proceed to examine and determined the claims specified in the preceding articles, and notice shall be given to the respective governments of the day of their organization and readiness to proceed to the transaction of the business of the commission. They shall investigate and decide said claims in such order and in such manner as they may think proper, but upon such evidence or information only as shall be furnished by or on behalf of the respective governments.

They shall be bound to receive and consider all written documents or statements which may be presented to them by or on behalf of the respective governments in support of, or in answer to any claim, and to hear, if required, one person on each side, whom is shall be competent for each government to name as its counsel or agent to present and support claims on its be-half, on each and every separate claim. Each government shall furnish at the request of the commissioners, or of any two of them, papers in its possession which may be important to the just determination of any claims laid before the commission.

Article VI.—The concurring decisions of the commissioners, or of any two of them shall be conclusive and final; said decisions shall in every case be given upon each individual claim, in writing, stating in the event of a pecuniary award being made, the amount or equivalent value of the same in gold coin of the United States; and in the event of interest being allowed on such award, the rate thereof and the period for which it is to be computed shall be fixed, which period shall not extend beyond the close of the commission; and said decision shall be given by the commissioners concurring therein.

Article VII.—The high contracting parties hereby engaged to consider the decision of the commissioners, or of any two of them, as absolutely final and conclusive upon each claim decided upon by them, are to give full effect to such decisions without any objections, evasions or delay whatever.

Article VIII.—Every claim shall be presented to the commissioners within a period of two months, reckoned from the day of their first meeting for business after notice to the respective governments as prescribed in Article V. of this convention. Nevertheless, where reason for delay shall be established to the satisfaction of the commissioners, or any two of them, the period for presenting the claim may be extended by them to any time not exceeding two months longer.

Article IX.—The commissioners shall be bound to examine and decide upon every claim within six months from the day of their first meeting for business, as foresaid, which period shall not be extended, except only in case the proceedings of the commission shall be interrupted by the death, incapacity, retirement or cessation of the functions of any one of the commissioners ... period of six months herein prescribed shall not be held to include the time during which such interruption may actually exist.

It shall be competent in each case for the said commissioners to decide whether any claim has or has not been duly made, pressed and laid before them, either wholly or to any and what extent, according to the true intent and meaning of this convention.

All sums of money which may be awarded by the commissioners as aforesaid shall be paid by the one government to the other, as the case may be, at the capital of the government to receive such payment, within six months after the date of the final award, without interest and without any deduction, save as specified in Article X.

Article X.—The commissioners shall keep an accurate and correct record and correct minutes, or notes, of all their proceedings, with the dates thereof; and governments of the United States and Chile may each appoint and employ a secretary versed in the language of both countries, and the commissioners may appoint any other necessary officer or officers to assist them in transactions of business which may become them.

Each government shall pay its own commissioner, secretary, agent or counsel, and at the same or equivalent rates of compensation, as near as may be, for like officers on the one side as on the other. All other expenses, including the compensation of the third commissioner, which latter shall be equal or equivalent to that of the other commisoners, shall be defrayed by the two governments in equal moieties.

The whole expenses of the commission, including contingent expenses, shall be defrayed by a ratable deduction of the amount of the sums awarded by the commissioners, provided always that such deduction shall not exceed the rate of 5 per centum on the sums so awarded. If the whole expenses shall exceed this rate, then the excess of expense shall be defrayd jointly by the two governments in equal moieties.

Article XI.—The high contracting parties agree to consider the result of the proceedings of the commission provided for by this convention as a full, perfect and final settlement of any and every claim upon either government, with the description and true meaning of Articles I. and II., and that every such claim, whether or not the same may have been presented to the notice of, made, preferred or laid before the said commission, shall, from and after the conclusion, be treated and considered as finally settled, concluded and barred.

Article XIII.—The present convention shall be ratified by the president of the United States by and with the advice and consent of the senate thereof, and by the president of the republic of Chile, with the consent and approbation of the congress of the same, and the ratifications shall be exchanged, at Washington, at as early a day as may be possible within six months from the date thereof.

In testimony whereof the respective plenipotentiaries have signed the present convention in the English and Spanish languages, in duplicate, and hereunto affixed their respective seals.

Done at the City of Santiago, the seventh day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two.

PATRICK EGAN.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

He Writes a Letter to the Southern People.

He Has Been Grossly Misrepresented by the People's Party in the South.

New York, Oct. 3.—A special to the World from Atlanta, Ga., says: In his campaign speeches Tom Watson has repeatedly argued that Mr. Cleveland declined to allow his wife to go to Richmond several years ago because he feared she would be brought in contact with Miss Winnie Davis. Mr. Cleveland has written the following to Clark Howell, national committeeman from Georgia, in reply:

Gray Gables.
Buzzard's Lake, Sept. 27.

Clark Howell, Jr., Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.:

Dear Sir—I have been fairly bombarded for the last two or three weeks by the reports of the falsehoods which are being circulated by the people's party orators in Georgia and other southern states, calculated to prejudice me in the minds of the southern people. The latest report comes to me from Gainesville, in your state, this evening, and represents Thomas E. Watson as saying in a public speech that Mrs. Cleveland refused to attend the unveiling of the statue of Robert E. Lee because she feared she would there meet Miss Winnie Davis.

"This is entirely a new fabrication. A number of the others have to do, however, with alleged refusals of my wife or myself to be introduced to Miss Davis, etc. Another prolific source of falsehoods of the stupidest description is in regard to my treatment of Frederick Douglass while I was president and he was register of deeds in Washington. There are some others, which I do not definitely recall.

"These all seem to be circulated by active opponents of the democracy, and their purpose is of course apparent.

"I have not thought it necessary to deny these except in a very few cases. I have thought that when they assumed proportions worthy of attention I would, perhaps, hear from you or some one who, like you, understands well the current of southern thought on the subject.

"Such misrepresentation is irritating and exceedingly monstrous. Not one single statement which I have seen of the kind above referred to has any truth in it whatever except this, that when Frederick Douglass was in public office in the city of Washington, I, as president of the United States, extended to him the same courtesies, as far as public receptions and matters of that kind are concerned, which were extended to other officials of the same grade. This, of course, was his due as a matter of official decency and etiquette, and I should have been ashamed to treat him otherwise.

"If in your judgment you think it well to make the denial above referred to you are at liberty to do so in any way you think best. Very truly yours,
"Grover Cleveland."

ATTENTION, FORD POST, G. A. R.

You are requested to assemble at Grand Army hall, Front street, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, to attend the funeral of Comrade John Lego, at Willow cemetery.

A GALE OF WIND.

Much Damage Done on Lavaca Bay.

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 3.—The News' special from Lavaca says: Last night a furious gale swept Lavaca bay. It was the most severe hurricane since the memorable one of 1886.

The harbor was full of boats, as it was meeting day for the fish and oyster union. The wind sprang up from the northeast early in the afternoon and continued to increase in velocity an after after midnight. During the evening there were sign of an approaching storm and a few boats put down the bay for better harbor. At 1:30 o'clock the wind had attained the highest velocity an deontinued until after 3 a. m. Over 25 boats were badly damaged. Some were totally destroyed. A number of buildings near the shore were wrecked. No lives were lost. No estimate of the damage has yet been made, as a number of boats have not been heard from. On account of these latter much anxiety is feared.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY:
Dear Sir—Naturally energetic I found it hard to be the victim of fell disease. I was terribly troubled with my stomach, my food would break up sour after IT eating—would wake up every night with a burning, sour distressed feeling there, that made my life almost unbearable. I doctored with physicians and took many so-called cures but none helped me; seeing in the newspapers of the wonderful cures performed by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., I determined to try it; after using it a little while relief came and before I had finished the third bottle I was entirely cured. Just think of it stranger, from a sick man—ENTIRELY CURED. ALWAYS Before using Favorite Remedy I was constantly constipated and have not been troubled that way since. But the greatest blessing was the cure it performed for my wife, who previous to taking it was troubled with sickness common to all women. She was so ill that she could hardly drag herself about the house; she too tried all kinds of so-called positive cures but with no avail until she began using Favorite Remedy, and that was the medicine we had been praying for. After using it but a short while she began to pick up in health and strength and is a well woman to-day. CURES I honestly believe had it not been for Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy she would have been in her grave to-day. It's the greatest medicine on earth. It's worth its weight in gold.
Yours truly, JAMES W. SHULTIS.

BURMAH, WOMEN PARADISE.

Their Lives Largely Given to Frolic, Fun, Dancing and Smoking.

Burmah is a paradise of women, says the Nineteenth Century. From the wicked Queen of Theebaw, who murdered 70 relations in a single day because they were in the way, to the pretty girls who coquettishly hold stalls in the bazaar in order to maintain their independence, Burmah is the land of women par excellence. Women and priests—who it is said they were the two curses of humanity? Well, there they are, and nobody seems much the worse for them.

In the bazars are women selling women's things. Little tiny clogs and slippers of Cinderella-like dimensions and daintiness of the colors of the rainbow, gold embroidered, high-heeled, pointed toed. Of Paris fashions you see nothing out here, and yet what strange and wondrous effects! All Burmah is a lesson in color, a feast for the artist, a mass of barbaric splendor, costly intricacy of carving, dazzling yellows, brilliant pink, rose madder, cerulean blue, burnt amber—a palette full of tints.

Verily a paradise of open air feasts, of fun and frolic, of dancing and singing children is Burmah, the home of the brightest, merriest, most good-tempered and good-hearted of children, who lounge in the sun, profiting by a climate and a soil that make severe labor unnecessary. Flat faces they have, high cheek bones, narrow, long, intelligent eyes, hair plentiful and shiny, plaited in a long pigtail by both men and women, brushed up fashionably on the top of the head, and by the women decorated with flowers.

The feminine dress of all classes consists of a plain, loose white jacket, reaching to below the waist, narrow sleeves (fashionable again), and a tight petticoat of silk clasped round their hips with a pin and managed when they walk with inimitable grace. From the back depends another piece, which trails a little on the ground and resembles a scanty drawing room train. These pieces of silk are of the daintiest and most artistic hues, generally of pale peach color shot with pink or yellow pale gold. The yellow silk of Burmah is strong, rich in color, and very durable and cheap. Add to this a scarf of silk of some contrasting color, and you have the Burmese costume complete, simple, pretty, and nice to look at.

Flowers seem to be their ideal and they themselves are as like flowers as possible. Better class houses have no walls, only sliding green shutters, which when open, as they are at night, disclose a vista of plants and flowers such that you seem verily to live in a garden. Out of doors the vegetation is green, rank and luxuriant, while a moist warmth, insidious and deadly to the health of the Europeans in the long run, gently fans your cheeks. Courtesy, degenerating among royalty to slavish groveling, is the rule in Burmah. The King was formery approached by his courtiers only crawling on the stomach, and servants wriggle and crawl still.

Rich people wear diamonds in their hair and disposed all over their persons, so that they literally blaze with jewels. The feminine court costume was a very quaint one. It was in the shape of a pair of stiff wings ending in a kind of tail, so that the lady could not possibly sit down, but, as she was intended to crawl in the royal presence, this did not matter much. On the head was worn some kind of high head-gear resembling a helmet stuck as full of diamonds as a Christmas pudding of plums. The wings seem to have been made of wire covered with gold foil, and the appearance of the court beauties must have been quaint and ungainly, to say the least of it.

The Burmese almost realize the ideal of the Romans, for they are always en fete perambulating the streets adorned with flowers and surrounded with twinkling lights and colored lanterns. Then the pwes, or dances, occupy a good deal of time. Girls are brought up from their earliest infancy to exercise themselves in all manner of queer contortions. Their muscles are so pliant that they bend themselves into any position they please, can turn their elbows inside out and look as if they had no joints.

Even little children may be seen practicing steps and attitudes to the calm approval of their mothers seated idly in the doorway. The independence of Burmese women is remarkable. They manage their own affairs, hold stalls in the bazar, with which no one interferes, marry when they choose, and divorce their husbands as soon as they please. No jealous veils cover their faces, no melancholy purdah seclusion prevents them from mixing with the male sex.

They flirt, dance and laugh with as many admirers as they choose, and, last of all, they smoke—not dainty little cigarettes on the sly, taking a whiff while they read a naughty French novel, as their European sisters do—no, but cigars. Cigars longer than men in Europe, cigars a foot long and two inches in circumference, their price about a penny. There, ladies, unemancipated creatures, though you call yourselves civilized, what do you think of that?

FADS IN DIET.

The Less a Man Has to Do With Them the Better for His Health.

Tomatoes are in season, and therewith has come again the cry that was raised last autumn, that the eating of them induces cancer. Cancer was as common in Britain long before tomatoes became cheap and popular as it is now, but such a fact will make no impression on those who choose to see some connection between the two, and who will perhaps tell us next year that cabbages induce consumption and green peas lead to epilepsy. Without disputing the importance of diet, both in health and disease, one may regret the numberless fads and caprices which in these days ban one food and "boom" another. That maltreatment of the digestive organs is at the root of many diseases is true enough; but it is to be remembered that to treat the average stomach as if it were an invalid is the best way to make it one. It is a popular notion that the stomachs of vegetarians undergo certain organic changes, which make them more akin to herbivorous animals. How far this idea is true no one who has not dissected a sworn vegetarian would dare to say; but there seems to be little doubt that a digestion which is never exercised on anything but the mildest meats becomes incapable of tackling anything stronger.

Perhaps popular medical literature is partly to blame for the growing habit of over nursing organs which are quite able to stand ordinary work. Health articles are written by doctors, and these, seeing people only when they are ill, forget that the papers they write for—the "family journals"—are read by men and women, especially women, who are perfectly well. "Avoid pastry," writes the doctor, thinking of the confirmed dyspeptic who left his consulting room half an hour ago, and thereupon a hundred folks who were never a whit the worse for their tarts, avoid pastry conscientiously and take to unending sago puddings, whose monotony their weary palate loaths. If we were to renounce all that we see or hear condemned as overstraining or misusing our digestive apparatus, we should probably take nothing but pepsin, with perhaps a little milk to exercise it on. There are times when, after a too rigid dieting, the most mature of us longs for the green apples and raspberry tarts of youth, and such a longing is an honest rebellion of the digestion against a regimen which keeps it weak for lack of proper exercise. To give fair and reasonable consideration to the food we eat is a matter of common sense, but to make ourselves mentally the parallels of the monks of Mt. Athos, and concentrate our attention on all that we should avoid, is to lay ourselves open to the chance of indigestion as much as if we indulged every day in the banquets of Lucullus.—Hospital.

ONE KIND OF DISTINCTION.

"Who is he? Why, I thought you knew him or I'd have introduced you to him. That man enjoys the distinction of being the only person who hasn't been two miles away from his home in his lifetime. That is to say, he thinks he does, and he is waiting until he becomes 60 to proclaim it to the world. He lives on the South Side and hasn't yet visited the North or West Side. You couldn't tempt him with money to go either."

"It's a fact in his case. It's the only stock in trade of lots of folks to be distinguished for some one thing for which they don't deserve a particle of credit. We read of a chap who has the biggest foot or the longest nose, or the greatest length of beard or hair; or of this one who has lived longer than any of his neighbors, and that one who has never seen a railroad in his life, and t'other one who never blacked his shoes, or the Kansan who never wore a pair of socks. A fellow was elected to the legislature in this state once solely and alone upon the single platform of his avoirdupois. He actually made a canvass on the issue that he was fat and his neighbor lean and the idiots of the district elected him, although the lean fellow had forgotten more than the fat one would ever have known had he outlived Methuselah. There is a United States senator who was once a cabinet officer that never did get his name into the papers for any act of his except the boorish one of attending fashionable evening parties in a frock coat. He knew better, of course, and had enough wealth to afford a dozen swallowtails if he wished to, but his ambition for notoriety, great as is was, could suggest no nobler means for attaining his end. He doubtless won his way into the senate by making his canvass in his shirt-sleeves and by begging 'chaws' of tobacco from his constituents. But there, I don't like to dwell upon that too long." And he showed his disgust by spitting upon the ground.

SENDING A TELEGRAM.

How It Is Done When the Sender Is a Shy and Graceful Girl.

Did you ever notice how little judgment girls use when sending a telegram?

I never would and never will admit that in most things their judgment is not sound, but in the matter of wording a telegram it is certainly at fault.

Not long ago I went with a friend to send a message. She had been looking out for a position for a friend who lived in a distant state, and having found one which she thought would be acceptable, but which had to be filled immediately, she decided to wire her friend to come at once.

Having reached the office she produced her pencil and asked for a blank. I stood and watched her as her pencil flew over the paper.

When she had finished she gave a little sigh, handed the paper to me and said: "There, see if that's all right. I left out lots of words, but I guess she'll understand. One has to be so brief in a telegram."

This was her idea of brevity: "Have found a lovely place for you. Nice, good-natured man. Will pay $8 to begin, but I think you'll soon get a raise. Hours from 8 till 6. You will have to come right away—on the next train if possible—because they are in a great hurry, and if you're not here by Wednesday they will get some one else. Now do come—I'm just dying to see you.

"Don't stop to fix up your clothes; wait and get Chicago styles. Be sure and wire me when to expect you and I'll meet you at train. Goodby."

I coaxed her to let me weed it out for her, and when I had reduced it to about 10 words I gave it back. She looked at it in dismay. Then, regarding me solemnly with her big gray eyes, she said:

"Why, I wouldn't send it that way for the world. It would hurt her feelings. Oh, I guess I know," she continued, as she saw me smile. "She would just think I am mad at her, and she wouldn't come a step."

Not until I had convinced her that as it was in the first place it would cost her more than she had in her pretty little purse, and that I wouldn't lend her a cent, would she succumb to the inevitable.

When it was finally ready to hand in she said to the much-enduring operator: "Now, you'll hurry it right along, won't you? And please underscore the 'Come on next train.'"—Chicago News Record.

AT SEA WITH DEATH.

How Cholera Ravaged the Steamer Virginia in 1866.

"I saw 465 English and Irish emigrants die of cholera in six days," Patrick Murray, the Water street liveryman, said yesterday. Mr. Murray is a robust, substantial citizen. He came to Pittsburg as an emigrant in 1866.

"I came to America on the steamer Virginia of the old National line. I traveled as a steerage passenger. There were 1,375 passengers and the crew was made up of 82 seamen. We sailed from Liverpool on April 4, 1866, and we arrived in the New York harbor just 14 days later. We were at sea eight days when the cholera broke out. It was the black cholera and it reached the ship with the first sunshine after a three days' storm. During the storm, which was violent beyond description, we kept huddled together in the hold of the ship. We had not been on deck 10 minutes after the weather cleared when the passengers began tumbling over with a strange ailment which afterward proved to be cholera. We had on board with us a quack doctor who was working his way to America. He had little ability and less medicine to battle with the pestilence.

"The ship was crowded almost beyond its capacity, and the plague had full sway. It swept through the ship like a deadly cyclone, and the dead and dying were scattered about like flies on a poisoned plate. The unfortunates would tumble over and many of them would die in 10 minutes. Others would linger for two or three days and some of them even recovered. But from the minute the disease struck the ship there was an unceasing, distressing wail that went up from the helpless sufferers. Without friends, without medicine, without the consolation of a minister, and even without hope, the victims yielded to the scourge as a suicide plunges into eternity.

"I was not stricken with the disease. I was constantly among the dead and dying, and I had positively no hope of escaping. I went about doing all I could for the afflicted ones, and every hour my surprise increased that I had not been stricken. While waiting for the disease to attack me, I really became reconciled to the fate that seemed sure to overtake me, and when occasionally I would get a little sleep I would waken up disappointed to find myself all right. You can scarcely imagine how completely abandoned one feels under such circumstances.

"Drifting about like a lost soul with nothing but death and horrible distress in sight I could have died then with absolute abandon. We used to drop the dead overboard without ceremony.

"But relief and hope came to us after reaching New York. We were not allowed to land. We were driven back to Sandy Hook, where we were held in quarantine for six weeks. Medical attention never failed and all the possible comforts were sent to us every morning. The afflicted were taken from our ship to an old gunboat which was anchored out in the ocean, and there for the first time since the cholera struck us did we begin to appear anxious to live.

"The filth of the ship and the mean and slim rations are responsible for the breaking out of the disease. That was my only experience with the cholera. I don't think it will come to Pittsburg now."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE EFFECT OF TOBACCO.

It Calms the Mind Which Is Weary With Work.

The action of tobacco on the nervous system is weak and wholly special. It does not put to sleep, but it calms and mollifies the sensibility of the organs. It causes an agreeable torpor, during which thought continues lucid and the capacity for work is not diminished. Such is the attraction it exercises and which causes it to be sought for by so many thinkers and students. Tobacco is to them a help in mental labor. When fatigue begins and the need of a moment's rest is felt, when the thought fails to present itself with the usual exactness, and the mind hesitates over the shape to give to it, the student, writer or investigator stops, lights his pipe, and soon, by favor of this pleasant narcotic, the thought appears clear and limpid through the bluish cloud in which the smoker has enveloped himself. I should make a wrong impression if I left it to be believed that I thought tobacco necessary to mental labor. It becomes so only to those who have contracted the habit of using it, and they can divorce themselves from it without losing their capacity. As a whole, tobacco is harmless to the mind, but it may have a mischievous influence on the health, and may cause serious diseases. We should not advise anyone to use it, and should try to keep women and children from doing so. In taking up this part of the program, and affiliating itself with teachers of all grades, the society against the use of tobacco has performed real service; but it has tried to gain its end by exaggerations that can only compromise it.—Popular Science Weekly.

GLADSTONE AND BURT.

They Are in Line on the Labor Question.

London, Oct. 3.—The miners' member of parliament, W. Burt, and who is also under secretary to the government board of trade, in his monthly report to the Northumberland Miners' Mutual Confident association, refers to the labor troubles in America.

He then goes on to repeat his conviction that the labor problem is in its very essence a moral problem.

"Higher character, nobler conduct are wanted all round. If workmen could once feel that they are being honestly and fairly treated, strikes and their evils would quickly disappear. The faults are not wholly on one side, nor are the virtues."

This teaching is in exact accordance with that of the premier. In a paper which Mr. Gladstone wrote some time ago and which has just been made public, he refers to the experience of the United States and goes on to remark:

"Capital must surely hold its own since it grows in that country more rapidly than ever. The impartial citizen then has only to bid the laborers God-speed, and heartily to wish that by their high standard of conduct, their wise choice of calling, and their equal and liberal respect for the rights of all men, or rather all human beings, they may be enabled progressively to consolidate the position they have gained, and, so far as justice may recommend, to improve it."

AN ECONOMICAL WOMAN.

As a new fall gown costs from $10 to $50, Mrs. F—— has actually saved that amount by using diamond dyes.

There are 40 kinds of these dyes, making any shade desired, but the fast blacks are especially serviceable at this season.

There are three kinds of diamond dye black, one for wool, one for cotton, and one for silk and feathers. None of them will fade or crock, and they make colors that are fast to light and washing.

Tickets are now on sale at reduced rates via Michigan Central R. R. to the hunting regions of northern Michigan. For further particulars regarding rates, etc., address Wm. Gates, Ticket Agent, Toledo, O., or Wm. J. Seinwerth, S. P. Agent, Cincinnati, O.

COURT OF APPEALS.

Special Session To Be Held in Albany.

The Question of the Voting Districts To Be Handled by the Judges.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The court of appeals convened to-day. One of the most important cases is the appeal from the decision of the supreme court at Buffalo affirming the decision of Justice Rumsey, in the legislative apportionment of Monroe county.

This question, as it may involve an extra session of the legislature, will call for immediate consideration. Should the court of appeals affirm the decision of the general term, then the districts will have to be changed around again on the old basis, and this must be done before the first day of registration. The arrangements for voting at the coming election are being made on the basis provided by the new apportionment law. Gov. Flower says that if it is found necessary a special session of the legislature will be called without delay.

DO YOU WANT GOLD?

Cripple Creek is not a health resort. It is a wealth resort. Quite a difference! Location, near Pike's Peak, in Colorado. Gold—bright, yellow gold, is found at grass roots and in the rock formation.

Reliable experts claim this is to-day the richest camp in Colorado. Assays average $100 per ton, and have run as high as $5,000. One hundred people a day are now rushing to Fremont, chief town of the district.

The chance of a life-time is worth looking after!

You can get there quickly and comfortably by taking Santa Fe Route. Only line with no change of cars from Chicago. Kansas City and other principal cities to Florissant, nearest railroad station, with daily stages to Fremont.

Address for rates and service,

GEO. E. GILMAN

Michigan Pass. Agt. Santa Fe Route, DETROIT, MICH.

A FRIENDSHIP.

One of the pleasantest of friendships is that between a young and a middle-aged woman. (There are no old women nowadays.) If the two women are of exactly the right sort, the friendship is almost an ideal one. There can be no jealousy. The elder woman is too old to be envious of the younger, either of her lovers or her companionship. The younger feels the superiority of her youth too keenly to care for the regard cherished by the older for her contemporaries. But each possesses a charm to which the other returns with never-ceasing delight.

The older friend smiles over but rejoices in the freshness and ardor, the eager anticipations and daring impetuosity of her companion. She speaks no word of discouragement. It is beautiful, this demanding youth, this splendid audacity, to which all earthly achievements are possible. It is the highest earthly wisdom to recognize that all this enthusiasm is needed for the lessons which divine wisdom shall teach.

And the younger woman, pouring out her hopes and expectations, her passionate longings and wistful imaginings, feels strongly the mellow graciousness which experience has brought. Dimly she wonders at the content that is always the most puzzling to the youthful heart. Contentment should only be found upon mountain peaks, she thinks.

Yet the large-hearted charity which endures all things, believes all things and hopes all things is an ever-refreshing surprise. Sometimes as she breathes its fragrance the vague question stirs: "Is it possible that this charity, this content of themselves, are attainment? Is it so? Can it be? Ah, no!"

No, not yet! For youth is the longing; for age, the knowledge that the longing was never meant to be satisfied here. Each is best for its own time. In such a friendship each grace finds its complement in the other.—Harper's Bazar.

IMPOSING ON A STRANGER.

Uncle Zeb, who had just come in from Uptheereek and brought his appetite along, stared hard at the waiter.

"Do you call this a bang-up eatin' house?" he asks.

"It's about as good as any in the city, I think, sir," replied the waiter, stiffly.

"Then I'd like to know," said Uncle Zeb, bringing his fist down on the table with emphasis that made the dishes rattle, "why in thunder you can't furnish a few molasses to eat on this pie?"—Chicago Tribune.

WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

A Poet's Little Game to Irrigate His Thirsty Throat.

"'Tis a fearful thing to stand before the plate glass windows of a splendid saloon and to realize that you are penniless," said Roger Mortimer, bon vivant, literateur and raconteur. "Fancy sees the long rows of bottles, with their appropriate and palate-soothing labels ranged behind the bar. The 'little priest,' with its stimulating absinthe, the last resource before the inevitable madness of delirium tremens, gleams emerald-hued and mocking; the golden champagne, imprisoned sunlight, awakens thoughts of cool, babbling fountains in memory's deep ravine; the ruddy brandy combines dreams of purple grapes and the dark rims of glowing tropic skies. By this time my palate is dry as tinder, while my tongue is as dry as a bone in a desert. He knows me, consequently he will not trust. Still, here is a glorious chance to test the superiority of mind over saloon-keeper. I enter boldly, and am greeted with a cordial 'Good day' by the proprietor. I lean negligently on the bar. He serves two lusty 'longshoremen with cool, delicious beer. The white foam drips down upon the floor. Did Tantalus suffer tortures such as mine? Casey wipes off the bar. He knows I am thirsty as Saharan sands; he sees it in my wistful eyes. He draws a glass of beer, and sips it slowly. The sight is more than I can bear, and I turn away my head. But I swear a deep, fee-fi-fo-fum oath to have a drink at Casey's expense before I leave the saloon. Turning to Casey, I say:

"'By the way, Casey, you are interested in Irish literature, are you not?"

"'Faith, I am, sir. Ain't I afther buyin' three volumes of Carleton's works, and haven't I Moore's poems, and Charles Lever's stories, and Samuel Lover's "Tales of the Irish Peasantly," and Gerald Griffin's—'

"But here I interrupt him by asking. 'Perhaps you can tell me who wrote that beautiful little poem beginning:

"Mush-a-ding-a-din-ah, shillaleh and all,
My blessing go wid ye, sweet Erin-go-bragh?"

"'No, I cannot, sir; but the Poet Geoghegan or Bryan McSwyny could tell ye, I think.'

"Casey is beginning to be interested. I switch him off on another tack.

"'Do you know, Mr. Casey,' I say with a good deal of assumed earnestness, 'that I think Irish literature has been neglected of late. Who speaks of Carleton, or Moore, or Lever, or Lover nowadays? Shall these glorious geniuses be allowed to slumber forgotten, or shall some public-spirited citizen rise up and take it upon himself to bring the attention of the present generation the treasures of wit, pathos and drama buried on the shelves of our public libraries?'

"'Troth, you're right, sir, (He is deeply interested now. His eyes shine with patriotic light; the color rises in his cheek). It must be dry you are, sir, this hot day, 'What'll you have?' he says.

"I take beer, Casey takes seltzer. We clink glasses, and I propose the toast. 'A health to the revival of Irish literature!' Casey resumes:

"Have ye anny plan in your head, sir so that we might get the b'ys a-r'ading Irish books?'

"'Yes, Mike, I have a definite, feasible idea, which I think could be carried out by you and I,' I reply. 'I think an organization called the M. C. S. R. I. L. could be easily organized.'

"And what does thim letthers stand for?" says Mike.

"'The Michael Casey Society for the Revival of Irish Literature,' I reply.

"'Yis, yis, sir; I see, I see,' says Mike. 'And where would the society meet?'

"'Why, right here in your back room. We could limit the membership to 50 spenders, no dead beats; all respectable young men, you know. At the first meeting we would elect you president, while I would act in the humble capacity of treasurer.'

"'You have a great head for organization, sir. I can see that,' says the delighted Casey. 'What'll it be this time, sir! Ah, take whisky, sir; take whisky. Shure, beer is a Doochman's dhrink.'

"I take the suggestion. It is prime stuff. It lingers gratefully on my palate. As I set down my glass I suggest that it would be well to prepare a subscription paper. Casey thinks so, too. I prepare one with an appropriate preamble, after which I write my own name, followed by $10 in figures, explaining to Casey that I am a little short of change. Casey says that's all right, and puts down his name for $5 which sum he gives to me for the purchase of stationery. I then suggest to Casey that it would be well for him to prepare a paper on 'The Life and Character of Brian Boru,' the material for which he can find in the Astor Library. He jumps at the suggestion like a hungry trout at a fly. We take another drink at Casey's expense. I then tell him that I have an engagement, but that I will take the subscription list with me and secure the signatures of Mayor Grant, Chauncey Depew, Eugene Kelly, Sojer Flynn, and a few other wealthy men with whom I am acquainted. We take a parting drink, also at Casey's expense. He follows me to the door, and says in a voice husky with emotion:

"I walk unsteadily away musing on the credulity of the human race, and more than half believe in the old dyspeptic Carlyle's remark, 'England has a population of 26,000,000, mostly fools.' I invest the $5 given me by Casey in liquid sundries during the next two days, but I am dead broke on the third day. Then I call on Casey again. He is overjoyed to see me. He has passed 12 hours in the Astor Library, and has prepared an exhaustive paper on 'The Life and Character of Brian Boru.' I congratulate him on his literary ability. He slides the whisky bottle over the bar. We irrigate. I then show him a list of 50 names of the most prominent citizens of New York city who have each apparently subscribed from $10 to $50 apiece. Casey is amazed. His generous impluses and pride are touched. He hands me over another $5 note. I remain in the saloon for five hours, drinking the health of the Michael Casey Society every 10 minutes, and reach home in a delightfully mellow condition, in a cab paid for by the president of the new organization. I haven't seen Casey for two weeks. I understand that he has bought a new Winchester, but I am not at all anxious to inspect it."—N. Y. Sun.

Ex-Senator Edmunds is a fine judge of horse-flesh. When he went to Kentucky a few years ago in Senator Blackburn's company to invest in horses, he surprised the dealers by his knowledge and won their admiration by the agility with which he would mount a horse from the ground with the aid of a stirrup only and put the animal through its paces. He was shrewd at a trade, but after he was suited he was as generous as a prince about the price, and the blue grass farmers fell in love with him.
